Annual Report for 1923-24

Presented by the President to the Trustees at the Annual Meeting, November 14, 1924

To the Board of Trustees of Oberlin College:

GENTLEMEN: — AS President of the College I have the honor of presenting the report of the work of the College for the academic year 1923-24.

I am presenting also a special report, brought down to date, of the financial campaign, which was authorized by the Board of Trustees at their semi-annual meeting June 19, 1922. A full report of the campaign was presented as a part of last year's annual report, and brought down to January 18, 1924,—the date of the postponed annual meeting. As a special section of the present annual report an account of the financial campaign is presented covering the period January 18, 1924, to November 14, 1924.

THE FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

The Assistant to the President, as Director of the campaign and at the President's request, has brought together the salient features of the campaign since January 18, 1924, for presentation at this point in the report.

At the January meeting of the Board of Trustees a detailed report of the financial campaign, and its results up to that time, was presented and later published in full in the printed volume of Annual Reports. It will be necessary, therefore, to add at this time only the facts concerning the eight months from January first to the close of the fiscal year under review, and to outline the general plans for the continuance of the work which still remains to be done to complete the Building and Endowment Fund of $4,500,000. The College set this sum as its goal at the outset, and today it seems just as imperative to raise the full amount as it did when the undertaking was started.

At the close of the intensive campaign in December, it seemed entirely clear that the President and the Assistant to the President could most wisely continue giving practically all of their time for the balance of the year, first of all in an attempt to secure additional larger gifts; secondly, taking advantage of the occasion of the campaign and the publicity connected with it, to enlarge the prospective giving constituency of the College among people of means; and in the third place to continuing efforts with certain Foundations, with the hope that generous contributions might be made for the objects of this campaign, at least within the five-year period originally planned for, ending August 31, 1928.

With these purposes in view, practically the entire field was again gone over, and attention was given especially to important centers like New York and Chicago. Considerable time was spent also in Florida and on the Pacific Coast. It is probably true to say that there has been added to the list of prospective givers, a group of persons of considerable means able to give generously to the College, two or three times as great as has been ever before in the possession of the College.

Since January first, the treasurer of the College has received over $235,000 in new pledges, and there are now recorded on the treasurer's books 8,462 pledges totalling $2,812,220.02. While doubtless some of these pledges concern commitments made and reported in various ways during the campaign, and so in that sense are not entirely new, nevertheless much of the total amount represents new gifts, the result of the painstaking work through the organization and carefully followed up since the intensive period closed. Much still remains to be done, in re-checking reports from various cities and districts to make sure that all pledges reach the treasurer, which were reported during the campaign. There are some localities of which it is still true that only partial returns have been made and the actual pledges from which have not reached the total amounts originally reported. Some inaccuracies in reporting were of course to be expected, and a reasonable amount of "shrinkage," but it is hoped that the College may make sure that these losses are reduced to a minimum amount.

As a result of the work of the past months, some important gifts are in prospect, though definite announcement cannot be made at this time. In a word, while there is still one-third of the entire sum, which the institution has set for itself, yet to be raised, the officers of the College feel confident that, in view of all the preliminary work which has been done, there is reasonable prospect that within the five-year period, at least, the goal will be reached and the funds will be in the hands of the treasurer.

In summary, it should be noted that (1) the endowment goals set in this undertaking have apparently been met: (a) the $1,500,000 called for under the conditions of the offer of the General Education Board has been pledged, (b) the endowment for the Conservatory of Music, $400,000, and (c) for student aid, $100,000, should be available from the funds promised; and in addition (2) funds for the completion of the Hospital have been provided.

One condition of the General Education Board's offer, however, still needs to be given serious and prompt consideration, namely, the requirement that all existing deficits shall be paid by the College before any payments are made by the Board. It will be necessary, therefore, that steps be taken to remove completely the accumulated deficit of the College before any draft may be made on this new fund. It is practically impossible to interest the more remote circle of givers in paying accumulated deficits. This acute problem comes therefore to the College officers and the Board of Trustees for solution. Delay at this point, it is quite apparent, is exceedingly costly for it involves considerable loss of income which would be available if the General Education Board's fund could be drawn upon.

It is not out of place, perhaps, to emphasize the difficulties which are now being faced at this stage in the campaign. The splendid democratic response to the appeal of the College, represented in the more than eight thousand pledges now on record, is exceedingly gratifying. This result means, however, that the field of givers of moderate means has been thoroughly gleaned over, and that but little in addition may now be expected from that general group. The College must look to persons of more ample means for gifts of considerable size, if there is to be any concrete hope of ultimate success in this large undertaking. To wait until the accumulated deficits and advances are eliminated by the application of surplus income, would mean the crippling of the entire institution by precluding all development and growth. The acute occasion of the campaign was not only the decreased income from the Hall estate, though that amounted to over $100,000 of annual income, but the need of funds for natural and inevitable growth. During the progress of the campaign the income from the Hall estate began to return to the normal figure and it has now done so. This situation was made plain to the alumni throughout the country and emphasis laid on the fact that even with the return of the normal income, the College could not afford to await the passing of the years to pay off its accumulated obligations nor adopt a policy of curtailing all growth in the interim. The generous response of the Oberlin men and women to this appeal, would seem to stamp the policy of the College with their approval.

Two phases of the practical problem thus remain, (1) provision must be made for paying the accumulated deficits, and (2) funds for the pressing needs of the institution, should be secured.

The outstanding needs which still remain to be met are largely for buildings. The cost of building is much higher than formerly. Whereas, twenty years ago, a gift of twenty-five or fifty thousand, or seventy-five thousand dollars, at most, would build a very respectable and useful building, it is now necessary to bring together gifts totaling from $100,000 to $500,000 to erect almost any of the buildings which the College needs. (How keen the need is for some of these buildings, may be illustrated by the fact that, in all probability, it is true to say that the College has recently lost to another institution its Professor of Physics, largely because we could not adequately house his department.)

The list of buildings needed is not large but of vital importance to the College, and includes, 1. a Central Recitation Building; 2. a Physics Building; 3. the Theological Group; 4. the Women's Gymnasium and Women's Building; and 5. Dormitories for Men and for Women.

These needs are given urgency by the fact that Council Hall and French Hall are under condemnation by the state authorities and that under the conditions of Mr. Hall's will, Spear Laboratory must be removed from the campus by 1929.

There is every reason to believe that the work which Oberlin College has done in the past ninety years constitutes a record which deserves recognition and which will finally receive adequate support. It is very clear, however, that increasingly the College must look more and more to those who know its work familiarly for the funds which it needs for its development and maintenance. It is steadily true that men and women of large means are restricting their gifts to causes and institutions concerning which they have considerable first-hand information.

It is this reason in particular that makes it clear that a very considerable amount of time and effort must be spent in introducing the College to persons of considerable wealth, and in taking whatever steps are necessary to establish those relations between the donor and the College which will justify the larger gifts.

From this survey of the financial campaign we turn to the regular report upon the work of the college year 1923-24. The Treasurer's report and the discussion of it are needed to supplement this report of the Assistant to the President, and to bring out the precise details of the financial condition of the College, as already affected by the campaign.

Election of Members

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees, January 18, 1924, Judge Alexander Hadden and Mr. Charles H. Kirshner were elected to succeed themselves as members of the Board of Trustees for the full term of six years, ending January 1, 1930. Mr. Homer H. Johnson refused to take a reelection, and the Trustees with great reluctance accepted his decision, with most grateful recognition of the extraordinary services rendered to the College by him during his twenty-four years membership in the Board. Mr. Mark L. Thomsen was elected to succeed Mr. Johnson for the term ending January 1, 1930. At this meeting also the Secretary reported that the Alumni had elected as Alumni Trustee for the same term, Miss Katharine Wright of Dayton, of the class of 1898. The Trustees whose terms regularly expire January 1, 1925, are Mr. Clayton K.

Fauver, Mr. Amos B. McNairy, Mr. John L. Severance, and Dr. Lucien C. Warner. Dr. Warner is the Alumni Trustee in this group.

Important Official Actions

The date of the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees was postponed on account of the financial campaign and occurred on January 18, 1924, as already noted. The semi-annual meeting was held on June 13, 1924. As noted in last year's report, a specially called meeting was held on September 21, 1923, to consider ways and means for securing special gifts in advance of the campaign, and to authorize the postponement of the annual meeting to January 18, 1924.

The records of the annual and semi-annual meetings as usual show the regularly recurring but important business of the Board: the appointment of the standing Trustee and Advisory Committees for the year, reported elsewhere; the consideration of the annual reports of the President, of the Treasurer, and of the Investment Committee; the review of the Prudential Committee actions of the year; the granting of degrees and diplomas according to the recommendations of the General Faculty; and the approval of the entire list of faculty changes and appointments recommended by the General Council. All these faculty changes are put on record in a later section of the report, dealing with the Faculty.

At the annual meeting the report of the Auditing Committee, based on a complete examination of all books and documents of the Treasurer's office, was presented and approved.

A very considerable part of the time of the annual meeting was naturally devoted to the consideration of the financial campaign as presented in the special report by Mr. Bohn, the Director of the campaign, and by other college officers. Plans were approved for the continuation of the campaign, and special attention was given to the accumulated deficits, which must be met before any part of the pledge of the General Education Board can be claimed.

The Trustees also authorized the Committee on the Location, Plans, and Construction of College Buildings to proceed with the plans and construction of the Allen Hospital. The Faculty and the Prudential Committee were asked to consider and report upon the plans for the maintenance, operation, and administration of the new hospital.

The Trustees gave special attention to a vote of the General Faculty, of January 15, 1924: "That this Faculty express to the Trustees its hope that the Hall Auditorium when erected should serve as many needs of the college and community as it is possible to secure under the will." After discussion the further consideration of the matter was committed to the Committee on Location, Plans, and Construction of College Buildings for study and for consultation with the Trustees of the Hall Estate.

The Committee appointed at the preceding semi-annual meeting to prepare and present amendments to the by-laws defining the powers and duties of the Budget Committee of the Trustees presented their report, the most important sections of which follow:

Sec. 1. A Budget Committee, consisting of five (5) members, who shall be appointed by the Trustees at the annual meeting, shall, at the semi-annual meeting of the Trustees, present to the Board an annual budget setting forth the Committee's estimate of income from all sources for the next succeeding fiscal year, and the uses to which such income may be applied, and also the Committee's recommendations as to the purposes to which such income should be appropriated; and the Trustees shall thereupon, at such meeting, review the Committee's estimate of income and adopt a budget for the next succeeding fiscal year based thereon, and the amounts appropriated in said budget shall not be increased, or used for any other purposes except those for which the appropriations have been made, except by vote of the Trustees, or except upon resolutions of the Prudential Committee, which resolutions shall set forth the reasons of said Committee for their action.

Section 2. The Trustees shall not adopt any budget appropriating a larger sum than the estimated income appearing in their budget, nor increase or vary the amounts approved by them in the budget except upon a three-fourths vote of the Trustees present at such meeting.

Sec. 5. The General Council shall annually prepare and submit to the Budget Committee a budget for all departments. Said budget of the General Council shall be transmitted to the Prudential Committee before it is transmitted to the Budget Committee, and the Prudential Committee may indicate their approval of the proposed budget, or may submit the same with amendments, or may transmit with the same an independent budget.

At the semi-annual meeting, on the recommendation of the Faculty and of the Trustee Committee on Honorary Degrees, authority was voted for conferring the following honorary degrees at the commencement exercises, June 16, 1924. The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Mr. James Wilford Garner, of the University of Illinois, "distinguished scholar, teacher, and author, an authority of the first rank in international law;" upon Mr. Harley Green Moorhead of Omaha, "putting his high talents through long years at the service of the Commonwealth, in a peculiarly difficult task;" and upon Miss Marion Edwards Park, "scholar, teacher, administrator, educational leader, President of Bryn Mawr College." The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. Jesse Edward Moorland of New York City, "wise and devoted national prophet and spiritual minister to his race;" and upon Rev. Theodore Merrill Shipherd of Scarsdale, New York, "outstanding Christian teacher and preacher, honoring his kinship with Father Shipherd, Oberlin's first spiritual seer." The degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon Miss Frances Densmore of the Smithsonian Institution, "close student of the customs of the American Indians, leading authority on Indian music;" upon Miss Linda Anne Eastman of the Cleveland Public Library, "winning recognition as foremost woman librarian in the country;" and upon James Brady Smiley of Lincoln High School, Cleveland, "a leader through many years in the secondary education of a great city."

The Trustees voted to commit the making of the contract for the construction of the Allen Hospital to a committee consisting of Mr. Thomsen, as chairman, and the two members residing in Oberlin, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Metcalf; this committee to have power to act. The Secretary of the College was directed to serve as secretary of this committee. The Trustees voted to authorize the expense necessary for the construction of the hospital.

The Trustees gave further consideration to possible exchanges of church properties with the United Church and with the Methodist Church of Oberlin.

The Trustees passed a special resolution designed to further the exchange of the First Church property and the square in which the Second Church stands. The matter was then referred to the Prudential Committee to negotiate further with the United Church. The following resolution was also adopted:

That a committee of three be appointed by the President, of which committee Judge Hadden shall be chairman, with instructions to interpret the will of Mr. Charles M. Hall with respect to the use of the proposed auditorium for religious purposes and to determine: (1) whether under the terms of the will this Board would be authorized to make to the United Congregational Church a continuing and permanent lease of the auditorium for its services of public worship; and (2) whether the will would permit the construction and continuing use of the auditorium building for the purposes of a community school of religious education, this school to be controlled and supported by the United Church.

Messrs. Fauver and Cochran were appointed as the other two members of the committee to serve with Judge Hadden.

It was also voted by the Trustees that all sums realized from the Living Endowment Union fund during the year beginning September 1, 1924, be used at the discretion of the President and the Secretary for such purposes as they deem wise for maintaining and perpetuating the addresses of alumni and former students and for mailing such communications to them as may seem best; this use of the income of the Living Endowment Union fund to continue until further action by the Board.

The budget for the year 1924-25, as adopted by the Trustees at the semi-annual meeting, is presented here in brief outline:

INCOME
General	$326,822
College of Arts and Sciences	296,075
Graduate School of Theology	39,224
Conservatory of Music	174,385
	$836,506

EXPENSE
General	$267,320
College of Arts and Sciences	338,968
Graduate School of Theology	47,044
Conservatory of Music	182,720
	$836,052

Important Prudential Committee Actions

A brief summary of the more important actions of the Prudential Committee between the meetings of the Trustees, not elsewhere covered in this report, finds record here as usual, because the Prudential Committee is empowered by the Trustees to act for them ad interim.

The records of the Prudential Committee show the usual variety of repairs, alterations, and improvements carried on during the year under the approval of the Committee.

The Committee authorized the Secretary of the College to arrange for the care of the former student records and other campaign material coming from the campaign headquarters at Cleveland and approved of the expense, estimated to be $500, for the erection of a partition in the Secretary's office for the effective carrying on of further work with the former students and for maintaining a former student address list.

The suggestion of Treasurer Thurston that a special account be kept in the Treasurer's office for all expenses that were distinctly campaign continuation expenses, was approved.

The prudential Committee gave unusual attention to a study of the budget, working in close conjunction in this matter with the Trustee Committee on Budget.

The Committee voted to approve the purchase by the College of the S. R. Williams cottage in the Oberlin allotment on Lake Erie, the property to be used by the Department of Physical Education for Women, in connection with their summer camp work. The property was purchased to make possible the beginning of that work, so long planned for.

The Committee also later approved of the purchase of the Holgate property, at 166 West Lorain Street, for temporary use as a Field House for the Department of Physical Education for Women. The money was in hand for this purchase, and the purchase was made with the expectation that the College would take over this property later in the carrying out of its general building plans.

The special Trustee committee, appointed June 13, with power in the matter of the closing of the contracts for the new hospital, approved the adoption of the architect's recommendations, as follows:

1. To the Van Blarcom Company of Cleveland:
General contract	$116,500
Additional for tile floors in certain
rooms	3,580
Additional for travertine vestibule...	203
Total.....	$120,283

2. To A. S. Hunter and Son of Willard, O.:
Plumbing and heating contract.....	$ 20,800
Additional for range not included in bid	250
Total.....	$ 21,050
3. To the Harrington Electric Company of Cleveland:
General Electrical equipment.....	$ 3,800
Nurses' station	1,200
Total.....	$ 5,000
Total construction cost.....	$146,333

The Prudential Committee voted to adopt the recommendation of the special Trustee committee and to award the contracts for the hospital as recommended.

A special Building Committee, consisting of Mr. Lyon, Chairman, Messrs. Henderson, Metcalf, and Secretary Jones, was appointed to have charge of matters connected with the building of the hospital, with power to call the Prudential Committee into conference as they might find it necessary.

DONORS

Gifts Reported by the Treasurer

Treasurer Thurston thus introduces the section of his report dealing with gifts:

It has been our custom to report gifts in two main divisions: Gifts for Current Use, and Gifts to Capital. Because of the great interest of alumni and friends in the progress of collections on the Endowment and Building Fund it has seemed desirable this year to add a third division which will include gifts to this new fund, part of which are for current use and part for endowment.

The total amount pledged up to August 31, 1924, to the Endowment and Building Fund is $2,812,220.02 from 8,462 subscribers. As will appear from the detailed list of payments, there has been paid in during the year a total of $464,914.39, which, added to payments received before September 1, 1923, makes a total of $470,211.39 received on this account.

Setting aside for the moment the Endowment and Building Fund, the amount of Gifts for Current Use for the year under review was $29,747.30, as against $87,884.64 the previous year. Adding the gifts for current use included in the Endowment and Building Fund—$121,550.50—the total of Gifts for Current Use amounts to $151,297.80. The total amount of Gifts to Capital reported by the Treasurer is $31,424.57, as against $46,652.80 the previous year. Adding the gifts included in the Endowment and Building Fund—$343,363.89—the total of Gifts to Capital amounts to $374,788.46. The total money gifts for the year coming into the hands of the Treasurer, therefore, amount to $526,086.26, as against $134,537.44 the previous year,—a most encouraging result.

In the Gifts for Current Use (aside from the Endowment and Building Fund) the largest item is the contribution made by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching for retiring allowances, amounting to $15,564.70. From the Living Endowment Union the Treasurer received a total of $3,972.75, of which $3,148.50 was for scholarship aid in the College and Conservatory. A number of givers gave to special student aid the sum of $2,909.19, including a bequest from the estate of LaVerne Noyes of $1,053.34. The Treasurer has received from the estate of Edmund A. West of Chicago and of the class of 1843, $2,662.03 as a partial settlement of the West estate. A considerably larger sum is expected during the year in the final settlement of that estate. The gift of $1,600.63 of the Intercollegiate Athletics account to the Intramural Athletics equipment should be noted. Miss Althea R. Sherman of the class of 1875 contributed $600 for salaries in the College of Arts and Sciences. The Grasselli Chemical Company again provided $500 for a chemical fellowship, and Mr. C. L. Knight $600 as income on a fund for scholarship aid. The total of gifts for current use designated for some form of scholarship aid is once again very noteworthy.

The class of 1924 made a parting gift to the College of $315 to be added to similar sums from preceding classes for a Rose Window in Finney Chapel. Their hope is that this gift may complete the amount necessary for the erection of this window during the current year.

One unique gift comes from Miss Fanny N. Burnell of the class of 1865—five dollars for marking an elm tree on the campus in memory of Mr. Levi Burnell (her father) and Mr. Hamilton Hill, the second and third Treasurers of the College. The tree chosen stands as near the site of the hall in which the office of these Treasurers was as could be arranged.

The Gifts to Capital as reported by the Treasurer include $6,077.42 from the estate of Rev. A. Hastings Ross to establish a scholarship fund in the Graduate School of Theology; $1,000 from Dr. Maynard M. Metcalf and $100 from Mr. Amos C. Miller for the class of 1889 fund; $166.75 for the L. L. S. fellowship; from the estate of Mrs. Louisa D. Fawcett $400 was received to found a loan fund for women; $29 additional was also contributed by the class of 1918 for the Henry Burt Hudson scholarship, bringing that fund to $1,825.75; and $616 from 76 givers to the Glen C. Gray memorial scholarship fund, bringing that fund to $3,186.14. To the $6,077.42 from the estate of Rev. A. Hastings Ross, already noted, should be added a matured annuity of $7,292.95, making the whole scholarship fund, $13,370.37.

Gifts subject for the present to an annuity were, $1,410.90 to be added to the John H. Beacom fund from the estate of John H. Beacom; $16,608 from M. W. Beacom to be added to the M. W. Beacom fund; and $5,000 from the estate of Mr. M. C. Whitney.

Of the total amount of Gifts to the Endowment and Building Fund, $464,914.39, $121,550.50 was designated for current use, and $343,363.89 was to be added to the endowment assets of the College, distributed as follows: for general endowment $265,219.78; for general scholarships $26,209.75; for general loan funds $20,248.84; for college endowment $430.60; for college scholarships $4,748.50; for scholarships for the Graduate School of Theology $24,898.84, including the T. E. Monroe scholarship of $19,898.84 from the estate of Miss Pauline B. Monroe, and the Jeffrey scholarship of $5,000; for Conservatory of Music endowment $1,267.58; and for Conservatory of Music scholarships $340.

Payments during the year upon subscriptions to the Endowment and Building Fund, classified as to name of fund and purpose for which the fund may be used are as follows:

To attain the endowment goals of the Campaign, a very large part of the subscriptions had to be undesignated; and the large sum of $262,659.78, from a host of givers, it will be noted, has come in to meet this endowment need.

Designated funds available for endowment carry the honored names of Professor Anderegg, Professor Hall and Miss Keeler, and begin funds likely to grow much larger. They amount to $3,898.18.

A most gratifying increase in scholarship and loan funds, bearing loved names and growing directly out of the campaign, amounts to $76,245.92. Such gifts help the College at a very vital point, and give promise that when all subscriptions are in, the campaign goal set of $100,000 endowment for scholarship and loan funds will be much exceeded.

Special sums are designated for the American Schools in Rome and Athens, and for our own Shansi schools.

It should also be noted that a sum of $110,305 was made available for the expense of the campaign.

Gifts Reported by the Librarian

Of the 10,931 bound volumes added to the library during the year under review, the Librarian reports that 5,466, almost exactly one-half, came by gifts. The Librarian gratefully recognizes the indebtedness of the College to many individual donors representing the Faculty, residents of Oberlin and friends outside of Oberlin. It means very much to the College that so many of its friends should be regularly remembering the library in their gifts.

Other Gifts

Mrs. F. F. Prentiss has added to many previous gifts for the Art Museum a very beautiful Chinese screen of teakwood, which has been effectively placed in the rug room of the Museum. A crayon portrait of Professor Monroe has been given by his son, Mr. William M. Monroe, and placed in the Economics seminar room in the library. A similar portrait had already been placed in Professor Monroe's lecture room in Peters Hall.

Gifts to Shansi

It seems appropriate that gifts made for Oberlin's educational work in Shansi should be included at this point under gifts to the College. The total receipts for the year 1923-24 were $23,012.88. Of this sum $12,059.83 came from the Charles M. Hall Educational Fund, including $6,381.41 to be added to the permanent endowment fund of the Oberlin Shansi Memorial Association. The other gifts of the year were all for current expenses, except $83.50 for specially designated purposes. A gift of $5,000 came from the Oberlin College Chest, the contribution of both students and teachers; $2,096.86 from Alumni, and $20 from residents of Oberlin. The Treasurer of the College has also received from Mr. George B. Hemingway $9,000, completing his generous gift of $10,000 for the Adelaide Hemingway Dormitory for Boys in Shansi, erected in honor of Mr. Hemingway's mother.

The President desires here to acknowledge, on behalf of the Trustees and the Faculty of the College, all the gifts now reviewed, and thus publicly to express to each individual giver the earnest thanks of the College. The great financial campaign with its 8,462 subscribers and gifts for the year amounting to a total of $464,914.39, gives particular significance this year to this expression of thanks. enlisted so large a host of givers.

III

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

Treasurer, Secretary, and Assistant to the President

The general officers of the College besides the President are the Treasurer, Secretary, and Assistant to the President, and their reports, as having to do with all departments of the College, naturally take precedence in the review of the year.

Report of the Treasurer

The report of the Treasurer falls into three large divisions: Treasurer's Statement; Treasurer's Accounts; Index of Funds. The most significant points in the Treasurer's report are contained in the Treasurer's Statement, and the Treasurer has this year made some helpful changes in the putting and arrangement of this Statement. The Statement is made to include a Statement of General Investments; Income and Expense by Departments; the Gifts of the Year—Gifts for Current Use, Gifts for Capital, and for this year, Gifts to Endowment and Building Fund;

Balance Sheet, August 31, 1924, of the Assets and Liabilities of the College, showing total footings of $6,896,862.93, as against $6,549,129.17 for the previous year; Combined Statement of Income and Expense, showing the total Income for the year to be $848,952.36, as against $819,177.46 the previous year; Comparative Statement of the Endowment, Scholarship and Loan Funds and Total Assets of the College, including Buildings, Grounds, and Equipment, from 1855 to date.

These sections of the Treasurer's statement may be briefly discussed in order.

The Treasurer's statement concerning General Investment shows gratifying gains, and is as follows:

The total of funds sharing in general investments for the full year amounted to $3,849,955.83. Income from general investments was received during the year as follows:

From interest on investment.....	$180,960.96
From interest, other sources.....	14,508.40
From real estate rents.....	22,048.92
From interest on Shedd Fund Notes....	291.22
	$217,809.50

After allowing $12,498.49 to funds that were received during the year, $202,122.68 was distributed at the rate of 5¼ per cent to the funds sharing in general investments, and the remainder, $3,188.33, was credited to Profit and Loss for General Investments.

The operations of the year resulted in a net surplus of $6,005.24, as is shown in the following table:

Income and Expense by Departments

	Income	Expense	Surplus	Deficit
General	$334,177.83	$268,059.86	$62,811.81	$
College	307,053.71	333,051.93		29,280.23
School of Theology..	39,198.98	44,791.59		10,219.09
Conservatory	169,311.84	186,459.46		17,307.25
	$849,742.36	$832,362.84	$62,811.81	$56,806.57
Deduct for entries between departments	790.00	790.00
	$848,952.36	$831,572.84

Special income unexpended	11,374.28
	$837,578.08
	831,572.84	56,806.57
	$ 6,005.24	$ 6,005.24

The surplus for the year, $6,005.24, was applied to reduce the accumulated deficits. The Treasurer's summary statement of the deficit account is as follows:

Combined deficit, August 31, 1923.....	$123,913.55
Charge back unpaid note previously credited to this account.....	5,000.00
	$128,913.55

Reduced by items, 1923-24:

Income from Estate of Charles M. Hall in excess of budget estimate.....	$38,000.00
Undesignated bequest	2,662.03
From operation of Dormitories and Boarding Halls	11,096.60
Surplus for the year.....	6,005.24	57,763.87

Net accumulated deficit, August 31.....$ 71,149.68

For several years we have had to show a debit balance in the account called Profit and Loss for General Investments. The amount of this balance on August 31, 1923, was $46,541.82. As a result of the sale and exchange of securities during the year, together with the application of the residue of income not distributed, to this account, the debit balance has been made good, and the account now has a credit balance of $1,285.95.

The Gifts of the Year have of course been unusually large on account of the financial campaign, but they have already been fully considered in the section dealing with Donors.

The Balance Sheet gives a summary classified statement of assets and liabilities of the College, showing the kinds of items making up the total footings of $6,896,862.93. A detailed list of both assets and liabilities is shown later in the Treasurer's report under the Treasurer's Accounts.

The Combined Statement of Income and Expense shows a total income of $848,952.36 and a total expense of $831,572.84. This indicates the largest budget that the College has ever had. The expense account, it should be noted, shows a payment on accumulated deficit of $51,758.63.

The Treasurer naturally concludes his annual statement with a Comparative Statement of Classified Assets. This is a statement of the endowment, scholarship and loan funds, and total assets of the College including buildings, grounds, and equipment. The total endowment funds of the College, including neither funds carrying annuities nor scholarship and loan funds, are shown to be $2,874,667.13,—a gain of $273,954.96 over the preceding year. The scholarship and loan funds now amount to $483,849.81,—a gain over last year of $113,533.09. When the scholarship and loan funds are added to the endowment funds strictly construed, the total present endowment of the College in the sense in which the term is ordinarily used, is $3,358,516.94,—a gain of $385,488.05. This is the first time that the books of the College have shown total endowment assets exceeding $3,000,000. It is necessary to say again that the total assets so shown, however, do not accurately indicate the total endowment of the College, for there is held by the Cleveland Trust Company as trustees further endowment for the benefit of Oberlin College amounting to $150,000. This would make the total endowment of the College, exclusive of the Hall bequest, $3,508,516.94. The Treasurer estimates the value of lands, buildings and equipment used for college purposes at $2,539,209.80. This, less the amount ($360,693.88) included in "items counted as investment of assets," makes the entire property of the College, as tabulated in the Treasurer's summary statement, $6,825,713.25. If however, the Allen bequests held by the Cleveland Trust Company, amounting now to $227,000 (including the $150,000 endowment already mentioned and the hospital building fund) are included, as they should be for a true view of the resources of the College, the total assets would make an aggregate of $7,052,713.25 exclusive of the Hall bequest. The College received during the year under review as income from its residuary interest in the estate of Mr. Charles M. Hall $190,000, as over against an income of $139,000 the previous year. This gratifying increase of income from this source has greatly helped in enabling the College to cut down its accumulated deficit, as already shown.

Report of the Secretary

The report of the Secretary falls as usual into two main divisions: Publications; and Office Work, Records, and Statistics.

The publications of the year have been those regularly issued, including two News Letters for February and July, in an edition of 20,000 each. It is the plan of the College, as the Secretary says, to issue two or three News Letters during the year 1924-25, and to continue this publication as long as it seems to serve so well as a means of contact with the Alumni and former students.

The Secretary calls attention to the fact that the College suffered from the omission of the valuable publicity work done under Professor Sherman's direction, and should face in the immediate future the question of some restoration of this Publicity Bureau.

The college calendar has continued its valuable service as a tie of connection between the College and its friends.

The Secretary emphasizes again the great need of the publication of an adequate alumni address list. As already pointed out, the Board of Trustees, at their semi-annual meeting, June 13, 1924, took action looking toward the publication of an address list, with the possibility that the plan approved by the Trustees may lead eventually to the printing of the needed Quinquennial Catalogue. The Secretary reported to the Trustees that a new alumni catalogue similar to the Quinquennial of 1916 would cost $7,000; that an address list of living Alumni would cost $2,500; and that a complete catalogue of Alumni and former students would not cost less than $20,000. The complete catalogue of Alumni and former students, the Secretary believes, should be planned for as a part of the centennial celebration of the College in 1933. The Secretary recommends that the proposed address list of living Alumni should be issued during the last half of the year 1925. The date November 1, 1925, he thinks would be a very fitting time for this publication.

Many points of interest are brought out in the full statistics of the Secretary.

As one of his official duties as Secretary, Mr. Jones records the vote for Alumni Trustee:

The term of office of Dr. Lucien C. Warner as a member of the Board of Trustees will expire December 31, 1924, and in accordance with the By-Laws of the College the usual preliminary ballot was distributed May 1, 1924 (April 1, for Alumni living beyond the borders of the United States), inviting nominations for a successor. The nominating ballot was canvassed on the first day of July, 1924, showing the nomination of the following candidates:

Rev. Ernest Bourner Allen, of the class of 1903
Hon. Newton Diehl Baker, honorary degree in 1923
Mr. Louis Edward Hart, of the class of 1893
Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, of the class of 1891
Dr. Lucien Calvin Warner, of the class of 1865.

The result of the final ballot for 1924, that will close October 31, 1924, will be reported to the Trustees at the annual meeting, November 14.

The statistics show that the College issued 325 degrees and diplomas during the year 1923-24, as against 340 the preceding year. Of the 325 there were 38 duplicate names; that is, 38 were issued to men and women who were already on the college rolls. Making this deduction, the net addition during the year to the total number of individual graduates was 287, as against 296 the preceding year. The total number of degrees and diplomas issued since the founding of the College is now 10,021. The total number of individual graduates from the different departments of the College since its foundation is now 8,318,—3,898 men and 4,420 women. The living Alumni at date of October 1, 1924, numbered 6,414, as shown in the following table:

	Men	Women	Total
Graduates of the College of Arts and Sciences.	2309	3526	5835
Graduates of the Graduate School of Theology.	519	5	524
Graduates of the Conservatory of Music	104	370	474
Recipients of Master's Degrees	315	166	481
Recipients of Honorary Degrees	117	27	144
Graduates of the Slavic Course	23	0	23
	3387	4094	7481
Names counted twice	599	468	1067
Net total	2788	3626	6414

The number of new students for the year 1923-24 was 638, as against 644 the preceding year. This makes the aggregate of all students who have been in attendance in any department since the foundation of the College, correct to date of June 15, 1924, 46,984. It includes the relatively small number of recipients of honorary degrees not otherwise enrolled. The above total of 46,984 is divided as follows: graduates 8,318; non-graduates 38,666. The financial campaign served to put the College into connection with a much larger proportion of its living graduates and former students.

The Secretary reports upon what has come to be an interesting feature of the Commencement days—the competition for the Commencement Reunion Cup.

The competition for the Commencement Reunion Cup resulted in the award of the cup to the class of 1874, celebrating its fiftieth anniversary. The class of 1923, celebrating its first anniversary, was second; the class of 1884, celebrating its fortieth anniversary was third; and the class of 1899, celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary was fourth. There were present for the reunion from the class of 1923 a total of 129 members, the largest number from any one class ever recorded as returning for a class reunion. Previous awards of the Commencement Reunion Cup were as follows: in 1920 the fiftieth anniversary class (1870); in 1921, the fiftieth anniversary class (1871); in 1922, the thirtieth anniversary class (1892); and in 1923, the twenty-fifth anniversary class (1898).

The total of students in all departments for the year 1923-24 was 1,773, as against 1,801 the preceding year and 1,758 the year before that. This number excludes entirely all so-called "unclassified students," and is wholly of students of college or graduate rank. The attendance in the College of Arts and Sciences was 1,240, as against 1,262 the preceding year and 1,250 the year before that. The attendance in the Conservatory of Music was 404, exactly the same number as the preceding year and as against 392 the year before that. The enrolment in the Graduate School of Theology was 41, a slight increase over the two preceding years. The totals shown in the Secretary's statement represent the attendance for the year; that is, any student who was in attendance for any part of the year has been counted in the totals. It is perhaps of more significance to note the average attendance semester by semester. In the College of Arts and Sciences the attendance in the first semester was 1,199, and in the second semester 1,169. The average enrolment for the year is thus seen to be 1,184. The similar figure for 1922-23 was 1,202; for 1921-22 it was 1,186. The enrolment in the Conservatory of Music for the first semester was 382, for the second semester 359, and the average enrolment for the two semesters was 371. The corresponding figure for the preceding year was 373. In the entire institution the total first semester enrolment was 1,624, the second semester enrolment 1,572, the average being 1,598.

The Secretary presents the usual statistics concerning the proportion of men and women both in the entire institution and in the College of Arts and Sciences. The percentage of men in the entire institution for the year 1923-24 (the Conservatory enrolment is naturally very largely women) was 37.51 per cent, as against 36.42 percent the preceding year. The percentage of men in the College of Arts and Sciences was 43.71 per cent, as against 42.31 per cent for the preceding year. It is gratifying to note that the total number of men enrolled in all departments of the institution for the year 1923-24 was 665, as against 656 the preceding year. This is the largest enrolment of men that has been reported since the discontinuance of the Academy in 1916. The number of men enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences for 1923-24 was larger than for any other year in the history of the College. The percentage of men is the largest for twenty years. This gain in the percentage of men is the result of the persistent policy of the College to make the number of men and women in the college department more nearly equal. The Secretary also reports that the gains of the last three or four years are being maintained for the current year 1924-25, and that the first semester enrolment of men for the year 1924-25 is 70 more than in 1923-24.

The Secretary includes as usual figures for the first semester of the current year corrected to October 20, 1924, with corresponding figures for 1922-23 and 1923-24:

	October 21, 1922			October 23, 1923			October 20, 1924

It will be seen from the Secretary's table that substantial increases have been made in the enrolment totals in the College of Arts and Sciences and in the Conservatory of Music, these increases amounting to about seven percent in the College and eight per cent in the Conservatory of Music. A slight increase is shown in the Graduate School of Theology. The Secretary directs special attention to the striking increase in the number of men enrolled in the college department (594 as compared to 524 last year), and the number of men in the Conservatory of Music (63 as compared to 44 last year). The figures for the entering freshman class are particularly significant,—a total enrolment of 399; 210 men and 189 women.

In dealing with these comparative statistics concerning the enrolment, through a period of years, the President should once more emphasize the fact that with our settled policy of limitation of numbers the comparison of numbers of students in attendance loses, of course, most of its significance. For we are not trying to excel our previous record of numbers or to surpass some other college in such a record, but simply to undertake our fair share of educational responsibility for those in the nation who are seeking a college education, and to do the best quality of work we can for those admitted. But we are interested, for the sake of both men and women, in making approximately equal the number of men and the number of women, and the figures for the current semester are particularly significant from this point of view.

In the enrolment of the institution the Secretary's figures still show the usual large percentage of students from outside the State of Ohio. Of the 1,773 students enrolled for the year 1923-24, 1,683 came from 48 states and territories of the United States; 90 came from 16 foreign countries; the State of Ohio furnished 844 students, as against 832 for the preceding year. In other words, 52.41 per cent came from outside the State of Ohio. The seven states that sent the largest number of students were, in order: Ohio, 844; Pennsylvania, 142; New York, 105; Illinois, 99; Michigan, 91; Indiana, 57; Wisconsin, 29. The relative order of the first six states does not show any change from the preceding year, but Wisconsin replaces Massachusetts in the seventh place. The percentage of attendance from the State of Ohio—47.59 per cent—was the largest at any time during fifteen years.

The Secretary's figures concerning officers of instruction and administration for the year 1923-24 show in the combined departments of the College an active teaching staff of 120 (4 more than the preceding year); an administrative staff of 32 (3 more than last year); and a library staff of 17, a total of 169 (10 more than the preceding year). Of the teaching staff of 120, 53 were of the rank of professor (3 more than the preceding year), 12 of the rank of associate professor (1 less than last year), 24 of the rank of assistant professor (3 less than last year), 23 of the rank of instructor, 7 assistants, and 1 special lecturer. Of the entire active staff of 169, 84 are credited to the College of Arts and Sciences, 8 to the Graduate School of Theology, 40 to the Conservatory of Music, and 37 are counted "General," including administrative officers and assistants and Librarian and library assistants.

Report of the Assistant to the President

The report already made of the Financial Campaign replaces the report of the Assistant to the President, usually considered at this point.

Heads of Departments and Associated Officers

The work of the administration of the College includes not only that of the general administrative officers now reviewed, but also that of the Heads of Departments and of officers associated with them: the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, with the Dean of College Men, the Dean of College Women, the Registrar, and the Chairman of the Committee on Admission; the Dean of the Graduate School of Theology; the Director of the Conservatory of Music, with the Dean of Conservatory Women; the Librarian; and the other general officers of the College—the Director of the Men's Gymnasium, the Director of Athletics, the Director of the Women's Gymnasium, the Director of Recreation, the Secretary of the Bureau of Appointments, the Director of the Summer Session, and the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds.

The College of Arts and Sciences

As the central and largest department of the College, the report of the College of Arts and Sciences is given in full, in part by Dean Cole and, on account of Dean Cole's richly deserved leave of absence for the current year, in part by Professor Charles G. Rogers, Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

I have the privilege of submitting herewith my fourteenth annual report for the College of Arts and Sciences, covering the work of the year 1923-24. In consequence of my departure for a year of absence on leave I have been unable to prepare the summary of the reports of Faculty members and of the tabular information supplied by the Secretary's office. These parts of the report have been supplied by Professor Rogers, who serves as acting dean in my absence.

The Faculty

The personnel of the Faculty changed in about the usual degree from that of the year before. Four teachers were back from absence on leave, one of them returning at the beginning of the second semester. Four were absent on leave, three for the entire year, one for the first semester. Six had withdrawn from the service of the College, and two had died, at the end of the preceding year. Nine new teachers took up the work at the beginning of the year under review. The active teaching staff comprised seventy-five teachers, besides five administrative officers who were members of the faculty but gave no instruction. At the close of the year four teachers of professorial rank resigned, after terms of service ranging from four years to fourteen.

Faculty Actions

The first important action of the Faculty was the revision, on the second of October, of the form of the penalty for excessive absence from classes. The new form, instead of making additions to the total requirement of hours of credit for graduation, makes a deduction from the hours of credit received in the semester in which the absences occurred. It was ordered also that in cases of transfer to other institutions the record of these deductons for absence should be included in the transcript sent to the new institution. The regulation in the revised form reads as follows:

“One hour is deducted from the number of credits earned in a semester whenever the total number of absences from all classes in the semester exceeds fifteen but does not exceed thirty; two hours are deducted when the number exceeds thirty but does not exceed forty-five; and a further hour for every additional fifteen absences or fraction thereof.”

One revision of present practice undertaken by the Faculty, and one of prime importance, had to do with the plan for final honors at graduation. It had been evident for some years that the old plan, while bringing out some fine work by a few brilliant students each year, made such strenuous demands upon those who undertook it as to fail in attractiveness to many who ought to be drawn into honors work. After careful study of the plans in vogue at other institutions the Committee on Honors at Graduation recommended, and the Faculty accepted, a modification of the plan in use at Columbia. Under this plan there are to be two forms of final honors, departmental and general. The departmental type is more nearly like our old form of honors, aiming at intensive work of a highly specialized sort in the student's major study, tested by special examinations and a thesis. It differs from the older plan in dropping the requirement of an extra ten hours' work without credit, in requiring a thesis, and in allowing a limited substitution of independent work under direction of the department for the class work ordinarily required. General honors, an entirely new departure, are to be obtained by work of unusual quality in a special course in the masterpieces of the world's literature. This course, to be conducted by the Committee on Honors at Graduation in coöperation with the several departments whose subjects are related to the works under discussion, will take the place of part of the usual electives of the students working for honors, but will call for much more reading than the courses thus displaced would have done. At the end of his course a thesis and examinations are required, as in the case of the departmental honors. The candidate will then have finished all the customary requirements for a degree, including that of a major study, have taken a somewhat reduced number of elective courses, and in addition will have read and discussed with experts some sixty of the world's masterpieces in various lines of thought. This program seems a most attractive one, and should draw a large number of abler students into honors work. It is unfortunate that the prospect of additional cost in the conduct of the work made it seem necessary to the Committee and the Faculty to postpone its inauguration until the financial provision for its proper conduct is available. The text of the votes on the two kinds of honors is as follows:

Departmental Honors

Prerequisites: Recommendation of Major department and approval of Committee on Honors at Graduation.

Rules governing the work done by Honors Candidates during the Junior and Senior years:

1. The Honors candidate will be expected to master the subject-matter of a field of study or of some definite part of that field. Emphasis will be placed upon the quality of the work done, not merely upon the accumulation of a certain number of credit-hours.
2. An Honors major for each honors candidate must be outlined by the major department* and filed with the Committee on Honors at Graduation not later ordinarily than the end of the Junior year. This Honors major must include not less than four hours of individual investigation with the report or thesis. The total requirements of the Honors major must not exceed a maximum of 40 hours.

* The outline submitted by the department to the Committee on Honors at Graduation should be given in the form of courses with the number of hours credit attached to each course. The department in consultation with the Committee on Honors at Graduation will have liberty to make modifications in the outline.

 The purpose of the filing of the program is to secure uniformity of policy in carrying out the program made for each honors candidate and is in conformity with the policy now in use in the case of candidates for the Master's degree.

 These four or more hours may be met by such seminars as give scope for individual investigation with report or thesis.

3. At the discretion of the instructor in charge an honors candidate may substitute individual conferences for part or all of the class recitations of any course in his Honors major. At the end of each semester the instructor must report to the registrar's office whether the honors candidate is or is not making satisfactory progress towards honors.
4. Special examinations written and oral must be given at the end of the Senior year covering the entire field of the major.
5. Courses must be elected from departments other than the major so as to complete 124 hours for graduation.
6. The average of the grades in all courses taken in Junior and Senior years must be not less than "B."
7. An Honors candidate failing to attain honors in the final examinations will not be debarred from graduation provided that the college requirements as to courses, hours, and grades have been met.

Supervision: By Committee on Honors at Graduation.

Form of degree: Departmental Honors:

John Smith, cum laude in Botany.

Mary Jones, magna cum laude in English.

General Honors

Prerequisites: The average standing of the grades in all courses taken in the Freshman and Sophomore years must be not less than "B."

Work required during the Junior and Senior years:

1. Regular departmental major.
2. At the discretion of the instructor in charge an honors candidate may substitute individual conferences for part or all of the class recitations of any course in his Honors major. At the end of each semester the instructor should report to the registrar's office whether the honors candidate is or is not making satisfactory progress towards honors.
3. An examination written at the end of the Senior year covering the entire field of the major.
4. A General Honors Course, similar to Columbia's, for three hours' credit each semester of the Junior and Senior year.
5. An examination, Oxford type, on General Honors Course at the end of each semester, Junior and Senior years.
6. Courses elected from departments other than the major so as to complete 124 hours for graduation.
7. The average of the grades in all courses at graduation must be not less than "B."
8. An honors candidate failing to attain honors in the final examinations will not be debarred from graduation provided that the College requirements as to courses, hours, and grades have been met.

Supervision: By Committee on Honors at Graduation. Special committee perhaps in charge of General Honors Course.

Regular weekly meeting of students taking General Honors course. At least two members of the faculty committee present at these meetings. Other instructors will be called in when the topic discussed lies in their field.

Degree: General Honors:—

John Smith, magna cum laude.

Mary Jones, cum laude.

A minor change in the regulation governing the number of hours a student may take was made on the 2nd day of February. According to this vote a condition or failure in the preceding semester does not prevent a student from taking a sixteen-hour schedule, if one of the courses is a floor-course in Physical Education.

On the first of April a committee was appointed to serve with a like body representing the Men's and Women's Honor Courts in a study of the workings of the honor system in examinations. The result of the consideration was the elimination of the obligation upon students to report any one seen cheating in examinations, and the adoption of measures designed to enlist the coöperation of students in securing observance of the spirit of the system without obligatory reporting.

An interesting event was the approval in the General Faculty meeting on the 13th of May of the conditions under which the Jerome Dean Davis prize fund is to be administered. The object of this fund is sufficiently indicated in the vote, which reads as follows:

This prize has been established for the purpose of stimulating the study by college students of the human relations in industry through actually working by the side of the laborer for one or more summer vacations.

The prize will be awarded to the student of the department of Arts and Sciences or the Graduate School of Theology of Oberlin College who has worked at manual labor during the preceding summer and who shall present the best report thereon contributing to an increase of understanding of the human problems in the field of industry. The committee reserves the right to make no award if no report attains a sufficient excellence.

Candidates should ordinarily announce their intention to compete to the chairman of the committee by June 1. Such candidates must be qualified to rank as seniors or graduate students at the time of the award.

Elementary courses in economics and sociology should have been taken prior to the summer's experience, and certain other specialized courses in these departments as well American Government are recommended. In addition a certain amount of collateral reading may be required. Under exceptional circumstances the above conditions may be modified. The report shall be submitted not later than December 1 and shall be an original typewritten copy in proper form for binding and preservation in the college library. A second copy shall be available for publication.

In case no one qualifies in a given year the sum accruing for that year shall be added to the principal.

The prize shall be administered by a committee which shall be composed of the President of the College, the chairman of the Committee on Graduate Study, the head of the department of Economics, and the head of the department of Sociology, who shall be chairman.

On the 20th of May a modification of the plan of final examinations was authorized, by which three groups are examined on each day of the period, instead of two as heretofore, and all the sections of large classes are examined together. The first trial of the new plan at the end of the semester seemed to demonstrate the entire practicability of this method of lessening the labors of the teachers in charge of several sections of the same class, and at the same time of insuring greater uniformity and consequently greater fairness in the examination of such groups.

Reports of the Faculty

The reports of the members of the Faculty voice a very general feeling of satisfaction concerning the work of the past year, notwithstanding the fact that we were dealing with a number of students still considerably in excess of our normal limitation, and that the work was carried on in a number of departments under somewhat unfavorable conditions.

Mr. Aron reports a very marked increase in the number of students in the department of German. This has made necessary the appointment of a half-time instructor. The promise of further demands by students will undoubtedly make necessary further additions to the teaching staff for this department for the year 1925-26.

The department of Mathematics has instituted a series of meetings in group tutoring for the regular freshman Mathematics and for the preparatory Algebra. These groups, taught by advanced students, under the direction of Miss Sinclair, are enabled to overcome many of the difficulties encountered in the college Mathematics with a minimum expenditure of the time and energy. Continued attempts are also being made to formulate the freshman courses so as to give all students a good grounding in Trigonometry, Plane Analytic Geometry, and elementary Calculus. Mr. Yeaton finds much encouragement from the results of the five-hour course in freshman Mathematics and believes that a similar second-year course would be highly advantageous for a considerable group of our students.

Mr. Holmes mentions with keen appreciation the visits of three lecturers in Chemistry from outside the College. These lectures were made possible through the kindness of Mr. Seabury Mastick.

Mr. McCullough calls attention to certain additions to the equipment of the department, mentioning polariscope, Emerson calorimeter, potentiometer and Hydrogenion apparatus, a small electric furnace, a centrifuge, and a filter press. He also mentions the fact that the present method of distribution of steam under several pounds pressure to the Severance Laboratory now makes it possible to install evaporators, a long-felt want. Mr. Chapin refers to the outfitting of two small laboratories and says that without these his classes, at their present size, could not be successfully taught.

Mr. Hubbard notes the addition to the equipment of the Geology department of 500 maps, prism binoculars, tertiary fossils, Hawaiian volcanic products, cretaceous fossils from Kansas, rock collections from Vermont, and minerals to fill gaps in the collections of the College.

Mr. MacLennan speaks of the organization of work in the department of Philosophy, and calls attention to the fact that the department is now just about at the limit of its service to the College. If Mr. Nicol were freed from the duties of the office of Dean of Men the department could get along for a few years, provided there should not be any increase in the number of students. He feels that the time has now come when Mr. Nicol's time should be given entirely to the work of the Philosophy department.

Mr. Moore of the department of History, refers with approval to the appointment of Mr. Artz, to serve during his own leave of absence, and makes a definite request for the services of an added assistant professor in the department from 1925 on. The work in the History department is heavy. Some classes should be divided in sections and certain courses which were discontinued after Professor Hall's death should be reestablished.

Mr. Rogers mentions the cordial coöperation of the other members of the Zoölogy staff in carrying the work of the department during Mr. Budington's absence. All courses except Vertebrate Zoölogy were given as usual. Miss Lindsay, who came on a one-year appointment, proved to be a most satisfactory addition to the staff. Additions to the equipment of the Zoölogy department made during the past year included six compound microscopes of high grade, a dark-field illuminator with a special oil immersion objective, a "White" potentiometer, storage battery cells, standard cell, vacuum flasks, museum specimens from Plymouth and Naples, and many volumes purchased for the Library by Mr. Budington while abroad.

Mr. Sherman mentions his work as adviser of foreign students. During the year 427 individual conferences were held. A very large part of this work was of a very practical nature, including securing loans from banks and private sources amounting to about $4,200. The larger part of this has already been repaid.

Mr. Stetson reports that as in previous years the department of Psychology has had associated with its regular work the work of psychological testing of freshmen and seniors. This work has resulted in a mass of accumulated data which are now coming to be of real significance and value. He emphasizes the need of additional help in the department in keeping track of students who have been tested, and in making more effective the work in vocational guidance.

Mr. Ward notes the fact that fewer additions than usual were made to the Fine Arts Library during the past year because of the great advance in European prices of books. Departmental lectures (in coöperation with the Oberlin Art Association) were given by Dr. Frank Weitenkampf, Mr. A. J. B. Wace, Professor Clark Lamberton, and Dr. Ian Hannah. Also seven exhibits of paintings in oil and water, etchings, and pottery were held. The Art Building has as previously served as an important social center during the year.

Mr. Jameson, of the Romance Language department, refers to departmental lectures given by M. Alexandre Moret, Professor of the Collège de France, M. Paul Pelliot, also of Collège de France, and Professor Morize, of Harvard University. The French Club proved to be a useful auxiliary to the regular class work.

Several departments call attention to the need for additions to the instructional staff and also to the need for increased recitation quarters. Among the needs which are mentioned by various teachers for their departments are the following: Mr. Grover asks for additional appropriations for the care and protection of the herbarium. Mr. Cairns and Mr. Carr both call attention to the fact that Oberlin College lags far behind other institutions of our own rank in providing proper equipment for work in Astronomy. A thoroughly equipped observatory is considered to be essential. Mr. Hubbard voices the need of a petrographic microscope, costing from $600 to $800, for work in Mineralogy. Mr. Krueger finds the facilities for teaching Statistics and Accounting entirely inadequate. A larger room equipped with tables and individual lockers for student use should be provided; also one or two of the larger slide rules should be provided, so that the students may acquire the method employed in complex economic investigations.

Mr. Jelliffe calls attention to the fact that formerly work in English Composition was required in both freshman and sophomore years. He feels that our present requirement of two hours through one year is inadequate and that this course should be increased to three hours. Mr. McCullough pleads for a more adequate ventilating system for Severance Laboratory, and also calls attention to the advisability of equipping the building throughout with open plumbing, which can be more readily repaired when corrosion occurs. Miss Oakes is now using as a Painting studio a room originally provided in the Art Building as a packing room. This room should be provided with additional light. Mr. Rogers mentions the need of more adequate lighting of laboratory tables in the zoölogical laboratories and renews a request for a dark room for experimental purposes in the basement of the building. He also stresses an early consideration of the needs of the Zoölogy department after Spear Laboratory shall be removed from the Campus. Mr. Stetson calls attention to the increasingly unsatisfactory condition of the psychological laboratories, in which the walls and ceilings are gradually disintegrating, due in part to the fact that water seeps in from the gutters of the building. Mr. Taylor and Mr. Williams both refer to the fact that Room 39 in Peters Hall is no longer considered strictly as a room belonging to the Physics department. They regret that it has become necessary for the College to place other classes in this room because of the interference of these classes with the preparation of demonstrations for the regular Physics lectures. Mr. Taylor refers to the need of drainage for Peters Hall, so that the basement need not be flooded, with resulting damage to both building and apparatus. Much better equipment for the work in Physics and a new building for the department are urgently needed.

Several members of the Faculty present also various general needs of the institution. Professor Wager repeats a suggestion made once before, that at the earliest possible moment a general lecture fund be secured so that we may be free to invite distinguished scholars to visit us without the annoyance of being obliged to secure for them a paying audience. Fortunately a new fund has been given recently that will meet this need in part; though the income of the fund will not be immediately available. Mr. Hubbard appeals for better rooming quarters for men. Mr. Jelliffe believes the College should take the initiative in advancing promising men of the lower ranks in rank and salary instead of compelling them to make a campaign for recognition. He feels that it is not so much the physical limitations in the matter of recitation buildings, laboratory equipment, or professional offices that influences decisions of men to leave Oberlin as it is the feeling that pure scholastic accomplishment is not so highly esteemed as it might be. Several members of the Faculty note the need of the services of stenographers for departmental writing, such as letters, manuscripts, syllabi, outlines, etc. Such work must now be done at individual expense—except in the gymnasiums—and syllabi sold by teachers to students. Mr. Mack raises the question whether the College may not well publish a quarterly, "Oberlin College Studies." This need not be merely an imitation of what the larger universities are doing, but would be entirely in keeping with Oberlin's academic standing. In this connection it should be pointed out that the College has already made provision for the distribution of reprints of articles published by the various members of the Faculty as Oberlin College bulletins. Among the general needs referred to by a considerable number of the members of the Faculty is that of office rooms and additional recitation rooms. At the present time the only possible hours when new classes might be placed upon the schedule are eight o'clock and eleven o'clock on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, unless the Faculty wishes to endorse the practice of using afternoon hours more fully for recitation purposes.

Mr. Sherman refers to the work which had previously been done by the Oberlin College News Bureau, and suggests the wisdom of restoring at an early date the service of this bureau. The friendly contacts with recognized sources of news distribution built up during a period of fifteen years ought not be allowed to be broken. The news notices printed about Oberlin College, if paid for at advertising rates, would have cost the College many times the amount expended in the salary of a stenographer. The value of the service rendered in keeping the institution before the minds of alumni and friends is not easily calculable, but undoubtedly large.

Mr. Taft raises the question as to whether some method less taxing upon the major and general advisers than the present custom of requiring attendance in Peters Hall during a full day of registration may not be advisable. Mr. Sturgis asks for consideration of some means of regulating credits for graduate students who are taking for graduate credit courses open also to undergraduates, and also asks consideration of some method for regulating credits of seniors who may be taking first-year language courses in classes with freshmen. Mr. Rogers calls attention to a conflict in interest between the caring for a larger number of students and our desire to do more intensive work with advanced students. Both add to the demands of an already filled schedule. There is urged a return to our previous limitations of numbers and a consideration of the time allowance in a teacher's schedule which should be made to teachers directing the work of graduate or honors students. He also urges a consideration of the introduction of training in the means and methods of research, both by bringing students into contact with investigations carried on by members of the Faculty and also by putting before the students problems for solution. Such work demands time and thought on the part of the teacher and both should be provided for in the teacher's schedule.

There is voiced a general appreciation of the increase in the appropriation for books for the library. In this connection Mr. Taft suggests that all freshmen should be given an introduction to the use of the Library. This may be done in personally conducted tours in which each instructor in one or two of the larger freshman courses, under the direction of the Librarian, or some member of the Library staff meets his division in the Library at one of the regular recitation periods and devotes the hour to an exposition of the plan of the card catalogue, the resources and arrangement of the reading room, et cetera. Such a plan is being followed by some of the eastern institutions with favorable results.

Several members of the Faculty speak of the good records which have been and are being made by Oberlin graduates in university work and in teaching. Our students are now at Bryn Mawr, Chicago, Cornell, Cincinnati, Johns Hopkins, Princeton, Syracuse, Yale, the University of Illinois, the University of Minnesota, the University of West Virginia, and in all of these places are giving evidence of the good quality of their preparation for advanced study.

Mr. Budington and Mr. Rogers comment upon the cordial relations existing between the College and the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole. For a number of years the College has been a regular contributor to the support of the Marine Biological Laboratory, and in so doing has placed itself definitely in line with some seventy other American universities and colleges. This contact is of great value to the College because of the close relations it establishes between members of our Faculty and those of many other institutions, and also because it places the College definitely on record as favorable to research upon the part of its Faculty members as one factor in their contribution to the world. It is now suggested, in view of the increased facilities which are being provided for research work at the Marine Laboratory that the College should take an even greater financial interest in the Laboratory than it has done up to date. For many years the Laboratory has been providing for investigators accommodations at less than the actual cost of maintenance. It is suggested that Oberlin now undertake the support of what may be termed an Oberlin room in the newly enlarged Marine Laboratory, at an expense of two hundred dollars per year. It is also suggested that the College should take the same general attitude toward the support of some other institutions, notably the American Academy in Rome.

The relation of the College to world activities is emphasized in a comment made by Mr. Geiser concerning the part which the department of Political Science should play in enlightening political opinion and in training leaders in politics and in political thinking. He calls attention to the great opportunity which Oberlin has for placing itself not only in line with other colleges and universities but in having a strong directive influence in this line of activity. To play such a role, however, calls for an additional teacher in the department and a turning of the energy now used in clerical and routine affairs toward more efficient scholastic work. Mr. H. A. Miller was active during the past year in planning with others for securing unbiased news which might be of assistance in securing better international understandings. Mr. Miller acted as chairman of the Committee on International Relations of the American Sociological Society. Various foundations were approached and of these the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation gave material assistance. The Social Science Research Council has assumed responsibility for which a budget of $170,000 has been adopted. The project is defined as follows: "A thoroughly scientific and objective investigation of the instrumentalities involved in the world-wide collection and dissemination of news and opinion of international concern and of the underlying and related problems of the formation, expression, and significance of attitudes on international affairs." It is planned to divide the study into several projects which will result in books, some of which should be text-books for college courses, comparable to courses on "transportation."

The report of Mr. Hartson calls for special and somewhat extended comment. Mr. Hartson, in charge of the work in vocational information for men, reports that the conferences were attended by approximately three times the number of students who registered for the course. There seemed to be general agreement among the students that the work was very helpful, and there was a feeling that this course should be taken during the sophomore year rather than later in the college course. The class was addressed by a number of experts from outside the College, upon a variety of vocations. These experts came willingly, at their own expense, and apparently accepted their invitation as the recognition on the part of the College of their success in their special fields of endeavor. Mr. Hartson points out that success or eminence in a given vocation is by no means an indication of the presence of the ability to analyze the elements of personality essential to success in that vocation.

Psychological examinations were administered to the freshmen and to the seniors late in October, 1923. These tests consisted of the Brown University examination and the Oberlin psychological examination, 1923. The latter series consisted of adaptations of tests devised in the local department for the past three years. The principal results of these tests may be briefly summarized as follows:

a. The correlations between the grades for the first semester, 1923-24, and for the entire year for the class of 1927 was $r=0.78$. This may be used as a standard for judging the consistency of the scholastic grades of freshmen.

b. The correlation between the scores of the psychological examination made in 1920, and the scores made in 1923, for the class of 1924, was $r=0.71$. This figure indicates that the test scores remain practically as constant over the period of three college years as the scholastic record from semester to semester. Those who made low scores as freshmen were at the foot of the senior column.

c. The same tests were given to seniors and freshmen. It was found that the factor of selection accounts for slightly higher average ability among the seniors, but the only test which indicates any superiority on the part of the upper class is the test for the general information. In this test 88 per cent of the seniors did better than the average freshman. The tests indicate that three years in college has resulted not only in no improvement in the ability to see an analogy, but in only slight improvement in the ability to grasp the meaning of a paragraph. Such tests raise an interesting question as to the intellectual development resulting from a college education.

d. The psychological tests are found to be of special service in detecting those members of the freshman class who are deficient in English. A study of the results of the tests already given indicates that the proper combination of tests requiring but two hours to administer will make as accurate selection of students deficient in English as has been made by a six weeks' perusal of their themes. The department of English is therefore making use of the results of these tests in the determination of those individuals who are to be given special coaching attention.

A second line of work which was developed by Mr. Hartson during the past year was the development of student rating scales. These are for the purpose of gathering data concerning individual differences in abilities. The method commonly employed is to ask the instructors to rate students upon such traits as initiative, intelligence, and sociability. The information received from such ratings is very liable to be colored by the instructor's general judgment concerning the individual. Mr. Hartson devised rating scales characterized by the fact that the abilities to be rated were studied in terms of concrete types of performance. In collaboration with the members of the Faculty concerned the abilities that figure in determining the success of the student were analyzed for the following groups of subjects: English, mathematics, the social sciences, the natural sciences, and the foreign languages. The work was completed too late in the spring to permit the gathering of complete data concerning the class of 1924. Such data will be gathered in the near future, however. The vital issue with reference to any rating scale is that of its reliability. Some evidence has already been obtained concerning the dependability of the Oberlin rating scales. Ratings made by members of the English department indicate that the ability to follow a thought or a narrative to its logical conclusion correlates reasonably well with our objective tests of logical sequences and that the correlation between the instructor's ratings of the ability to interpret the meaning of questions and assignments and the intelligence test scores is much closer than that between the student's grades and the same intelligence scores. It appears, therefore, that the instructor who has the sort of acquaintance with his students that is possible in the courses in freshman English and Mathematics is able to give reliable data on the Oberlin rating scale. Evidence is already at hand indicating that the rating scale constitutes a very important source of information concerning those traits which determine the student's academic success. Mr. Hartson mentions with much appreciation the coöperation of other members of the Faculty in bringing these rating scales before the students in their courses. Two further developments are planned for future months, namely, rating scales for those traits of personality which find chief expression outside the classroom, such as leadership, geniality, tactfulness, and numerous social abilities; a second, job analysis of some of the specific types of secondary school teaching. The possession of such analysis will provide measuring scales against which to match analysis of personal abilities made possible by the rating scales.

Instruction

The customary tables of information concerning the amount of instruction offered and given in the College during the year, as prepared by the Secretary of the College, are given below. The first shows, in semester hours, the amount of work offered, each semester of every course being counted for as many hours as the course had recitation periods, or equivalent laboratory periods, per week through the semester, without regard to the number of sections in which the course was to be given.

This table shows that the net increase in the amount of instruction offered in 1923-24 over that for 1922-23 was 47 semester hours. The increases, amounting to 80 semester hours, were in the following departments: Animal Ecology, Fine Arts (Historical Courses), Geology, German, History, Mathematics, Psychology, Public Speaking, Italian, Spanish, Vocational Information. The losses, amounting to 33 semester hours, were in Fine Arts (Studio Courses), Greek, Latin, Physics, French, and Zoölogy. It should be noted here that the apparent gain in Animal Ecology and a corresponding loss in Zoölogy is accounted for by the separation of the Animal Ecology from the Zoölogy department, and the gain in Public Speaking and in Italian is due to the restoration of that work in the curriculum. Twenty-one semester courses announced in the Bulletin, six of them Honors courses, were not given. Two sections of other courses were found unnecessary and were dropped. Six courses in the Slavic Language and Literature were also dropped. Five courses, two of them Honors courses, were organized and given, though not announced in advance. Three additional sections of courses were found necessary and were provided.

The second table shows, in "instruction units," the amount of instruction actually given in the year. Each "unit," as the term is here used, represents the instruction of one student for one hour a week through one semester. The number of units credited to a course is consequently the product of the number of students taking the course multiplied by the number of recitation periods, or equivalent laboratory periods, of the course per week each semester.

The total of 36,209 instruction units is a considerable increase over that of the preceding year. The departments showing the greatest increases are German (67 per cent), Physics (49 per cent), Bibliography, Education, Sociology, and Chemistry. The principal losses were in Political Science, Zoölogy, Economics, and in Fine Arts (Studio Courses). A large part of the apparent loss in Zoölogy is due to the removal of the work in Animal Ecology from the department. The total number of classes and sections for the year was 532, as against 534 and 510 for the two years immediately preceding. The average size of classes, obtained by dividing the entire enrolment in all classes for both semesters by 532 was 25.6, the same as the preceding year, and as against 25.0 the year before. The number of classes with an enrolment between 31 and 40 was 58, as against 70 the year before; between 41 and 50 there were 18, as against 15 the preceding year; between 51 and 60 there were 11, as against 14 the year before; and there were 27 over 60, as against 24 the year before. The whole number exceeding 30 members was 114, or 21.4 per cent of the whole as against 23 per cent of the year before. It is certainly significant that after adopting 30 as the maximum beyond which it is not desirable for recitation classes to go, we find slightly more than one-fifth of all our classes exceeding that number. All gymnasium classes are omitted from the computation, as less likely to be hampered in the effectiveness of their work by large numbers.

Attendance and Scholarship

The entire number of students registered in the College of Arts and Sciences for the year was 1,240, of whom 544 were men and 696 were women. This was a loss of 22 over the year before, with a decrease of 32 in the number of women, but an increase of 10 in the number of men, thus approaching more nearly the desired registration of an equal number of men and women.

The Freshman Honor List contained the names of 36 Freshmen who ranked highest in grades for full work in the first semester. The list was headed by Miss Dorothy Hall, of the Alexander J. Kent High School, Kentland, Indiana. In May thirty members of the Senior class were elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, thirteen of the number being men and seventeen women. In the preceding year the list numbered eight men and 23 women. At Commencement 12 Seniors were graduated with distinction, five summa cum laude in Chemistry, French, and Political Science, three magna cum laude in Latin and Philosophy, and four cum laude in Chemistry, English, Latin, and Psychology. Of these twelve, eight were men, four women.

In the list of students delinquent in scholarship, 122 were involved in the first semester and 113 in the second. The number of separate conditions and failures was 145 in the first semester and 140 in the second semester. The students who incurred these failures and conditions also left incomplete eighteen courses in the first semester and nineteen in the second semester. These figures show an improvement for both semesters over that of the year before, with a decided improvement in the first semester. The number of incomplete courses of other students was 96 in the first semester and 68 in the second, appearing in the records of 75 students in the first semester and 45 in the second.

Needs

After the detailed statement of needs submitted last year, and the items mentioned in this report above, it seems unnecessary to do more than recapitulate in the briefest fashion at this time. The lack of adequate rooms and buildings for recitation purposes is still our greatest handicap. Insufficient teaching staff is next, though some gains have been made at this point. Considerable progress has been made with reference to the timely promotion of successful teachers, but further advance remains to be made. Steady gains are being achieved in regard to the privilege of sabbatical leave, but some acceleration of the gains would be most desirable. The departmental and library appropriations, drastically cut at the time of our greatest stringency, have not been restored to their former proportions, nor have the much-wished-for departmental and general lecture-ships yet been acquired. The advances of the year were notable, but the remaining needs are so great as to seem hardly less than before. Much yet remains to be worked for, but that is in itself a situation not wholly wanting in grounds for thankfulness.

The Dean of College Men, Dr. Nicol, reports an enrolment of 544 for the academic year 1923-24, as against 534 the previous year. The number of men enrolled in the freshman class for the year under review was the largest in the history of the College. And the number for the current semester is, as we have seen, still larger. The increase in the total number of men for the current semester in both the College and Conservatory emphasizes again the great need for improving the living conditions for the men. There is manifest need for more and better dormitories for men.

The Dean reports favorably upon the experiment of requiring all Freshmen to take their meals in the Men's Commons. He does not feel that there are no objections to the plan, but that it is the general opinion that on the whole the plan has been a success. Prominent upper-classmen sit at the heads of the tables and help acquaint the new men with the traditions and ideals of the College.

There were three very serious cases of discipline among the men of the College, reflecting, no doubt, in part, a somewhat general lowering of standards throughout the country. But in general the Dean feels that the coöperation of students with the Faculty has been better during the year under review than at any time during the last eight years.

Miss Anna M. Klingenhagen, Dean of College Women and Chairman of the Women's Board, reports an enrolment of 696 women in the College of Arts and Sciences. Of these, 9 were graduate students.

The Dean has this to say of the health record of the young women in her charge:

The health record of the young women in the College of Arts and Sciences was better last year than that of any other year in the experience of your present Dean of Women. Credit for this was due at least in part both to the fact that the Browning House (our infirmary for women) was reorganized to permit an arrangement of two nurses, and also to the new system of daily health reports from each dormitory, college and private, where young women lived. These reports enabled the Deans' offices to check up the health situation each day, and one of the two nurses was able to visit promptly any young woman who needed attention, Dean Nash, who is Chairman of the Browning House Committee, makes a special report for the House in connection with her report as Dean of Conservatory Women.

Dean Klingenhagen reports the changes which have taken place this year among the Matrons of college halls:

There have been several changes in the position of Matrons of college halls. Mrs. Mary T. Davidson, who for many years had been a very successful Matron in Oberlin, was forced because of ill health to give up, in February, her work at Baldwin Cottage. Her marriage later in the spring led to a definite resignation of her position, a resignation which was accepted with great regret. Her place, however, has been happily filled by Mrs. Alice B. Seaman, for many years the Matron of Allencroft, a Conservatory house. Mrs. Helen G. Wagoner of Lord Cottage felt that she no longer cared to assume the responsibility of a house which was both a rooming and boarding place and was transferred to Johnson House, the Conservatory Annex to Barrows House. Oberlin College is fortunate in not losing her fine influence with young women. Her place in Lord Cottage is filled by Miss Mary Zeller who, at her own request, was transferred there from Shurtleff Cottage where she had had a successful first year. The new Matron at the latter cottage is Miss Elizabeth F. Hull, who comes to Oberlin with high recommendations after a year's work in household administration at Western Reserve University. I wish here to repeat the statement in my first annual report that Oberlin College is to be congratulated on the type of women it is able to secure for its heads of halls for young women.

The Dean again emphasizes the need of further dormitories for women, and especially the imperative need of a suitable women's building.

The records of the Registrar of the College of Arts and Sciences concern 1,240 students for the year under review, as against 1,262 the preceding year. The departments of study registering the largest number of major students, in order, are: English, Economics, Sociology, Physical Education, French, and Chemistry. English leads as usual and shows an increasing number of men majoring in that department.

The Registrar calls attention to the fact that the class of 1924 was an exceptional class from the point of view of scholarship, unity, and its large number of very able students.

The Registrar's figures show that 25 religious denominations were represented in the student body of the College of Arts and Sciences by membership or preference. On account of historical affiliations, Congregationalists naturally lead (488), although the College has no denominational limitation of any kind. A narrowly denominational college is neither sought nor desired. There are also large numbers both of Methodists (220), and Presbyterians (213). The other churches contributing the largest number of students, in order, are: Baptist (63); Episcopal (50); Lutheran (36); Disciple (31); Reformed (14); and Catholic (14). The proportions are almost exactly the same as last year.

The Registrar continues her study this year of the various occupations of the parents of the college students. Her records show that for the College of Arts and Sciences 115 of our students came from the homes of ministers, missionaries, or other religious workers (124 the preceding year); 72 from the homes of teachers or educational executives (68 the preceding year); 55 from the homes of physicians (the same number as the preceding year); 42 from the homes of those working in applied science (37 the preceding year); 37 from the homes of lawyers (41 the preceding year); 23 from the homes of journalists (25 the preceding year); 14 from the homes of those working in social service (7 the preceding year); 20 from other professions (13 the preceding year); from homes representing still other occupations 729 (706 the preceding year). Of these occupations 372 are in trade or commerce (337 the preceding year); 113 in some form of agriculture, including forestry and horticulture (132 the preceding year); 104 in manufacturing and mechanical industries (119 the preceding year); 22 in government service (25 the preceding year); 17 in public service (25 the preceding year); 28 in transportation (17 the preceding year); and the remainder are scattered among five other classes of callings. The proportions here vary very little from those of last year. The large number of students coming from the homes of ministers and other religious workers, and from the homes of teachers or educational executives is notable.

The Registrar calls attention to the constantly increasing demands necessarily made upon the Registrar's office:

State, county, and local Boards are asking more and more information about prospective teachers. Universities and leading colleges are offering a larger number of fellowships and scholarships, and many credentials must be forwarded for our graduates. All this involves the filling out of all sorts of blank forms. Reports are sent to parents each semester for all Freshmen, and to others upon request. Questionnaires are many and varied as to subject and the angle for which information is sought. All these are in addition to the ordinary routine of the work.

As Chairman of the Committee on Admission the Secretary of the College presents his usual careful analysis of the college enrolment, showing that 819 students (824 the preceding year), representing 66.05 per cent of the total, had been in previous attendance in the College of Arts and Sciences, and that 421, representing 33.95 per cent of the total, were new students in this department. These percentages show only slight variations from the preceding year. Over a ten-year period the Secretary finds that on the average 64 per cent are old students, that is, they have been enrolled in Oberlin in former years, and that 36 per cent are new, that is, they have never before been enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences. Of the 421 new students admitted to the College of Arts and Sciences for 1923-24, 352 were admitted as Freshmen (363 the preceding year); 27 as Sophomores (35 the preceding year); 17 as Juniors (22 the preceding year) and 3 as Seniors (7 the preceding year); the others were graduate or special students. The total number of Freshmen as shown in the final count of all students for 1923-24 was 374.

The 58 students admitted with advance standing came from 46 institutions (as against 82 students from 59 institutions the preceding year). There was a total of 359 students who entered the College of Arts and Sciences during the year 1923-24 with standing as Freshmen. They came from 221 different high schools, academies, and other secondary schools. The corresponding figures for 1922-23 were 355 students from 229 schools; for 1921-22 the figures were 345 students from 218 schools; for 1920-21, 356 students from 217 schools. Oberlin high school was represented by 28 students. Of the other schools, Lorain again ranked first with 10 representatives. Lincoln High School, of Cleveland, and Lakewood, Ohio, High School ranked second with 7 each. The South High School of Youngstown ranked fourth with 6 students. There were 5 representatives from the Moraine Park School of Dayton and from the Central High School of Fort Wayne, Indiana. There were 4 representatives from each of the following schools: Harbor High School, Ashtabula; Lakeview High School, Chicago, Ill.; Glenville High School, Cleveland; Oak Park and River Forest Township High School, Oak Park, Ill.; Ravenna, Ohio, High School. Fourteen schools were represented by 3 students each, and 34 schools were represented by two students each, and 161 schools by one student each.

The Chairman of the Committee on Admission makes a special study in his report this year on Oberlin's success in holding students for graduation. The Secretary's figures make it possible to present this important matter fully and accurately, and the subject itself is so vital a one as richly to deserve presentation in full:

Oberlin has always been proud of its record for the high percentage of students who remain for graduation. As a basis for the discussion that follows I present at this point a table giving the facts concerning the admission and classification of new students and graduation statistics in the College of Arts and Sciences for the period of 23 years beginning with 1901.

It would seem that one might get a fairly accurate percentage of graduation by dividing the total number of graduates during the 23-year period by the total number of students admitted during that period. The result would be 46.4 per cent.

But the fact that the graduating classes at the beginning of the period were relatively small and that the entering classes at the end of the period were large makes this method of determining Oberlin's graduation percentage unfair. The more correct method is as follows:

* Includes 162 men who enrolled in S. A. T. C. and dropped college work as soon as the S. A. T. C. disbanded.

Freshmen admitted, 1901 to 1920 inclusive.....	5562
College Specials admitted, 1901 to 1920 inclusive.	568
Sophomores admitted, 1902 to 1921 inclusive.....	517
Juniors admitted, 1903 to 1922 inclusive.....	345
Seniors admitted, 1904 to 1923 inclusive.....	137
Totals	7129
Graduates, 1905 to 1924 inclusive	3570
Percentage	50.4

If the above presentation is correct, as I think it is, Oberlin during the period of the last 20 years has graduated slightly more than half of the students who enrolled in the College for courses of study. The exact percentage as shown is 50.4.

If a proper deduction is made for 162 S. A. T. C. students included in the admission totals for the year 1918, the graduation percentage would be 51.5. The registration totals for the year 1918 included 162 students who dropped their college work as soon as the S. A. T. C. was disbanded, and it seems entirely fair to exclude them from the totals. Their motive in registering in Oberlin was entirely different from the motive of the other 7,000 students included in this study.

It is of interest to note that there is a gratifying improvement in the graduation percentage since the war as compared to the period before the war. The above figures cover the entire period since 1901. I have made a separate study of the period from 1901 to 1914 before the outbreak of the war and of the years from 1919 to 1924 since the close of the war, calculating the percentage in each case according to the more accurate method suggested above. The graduation percentage for the pre-war period from 1901 to 1914 was 49.1, and for the post-war period from 1919 to 1924 it was 57.6.

Freshman Mortality Rate in Other Colleges

In April, 1922, Mr. H. H. Caldwell, Registrar of Georgia School of Technology, reported to the American Association of Collegiate Registrars the result of an investigation made by him as to the "freshman mortality" rate, meaning by this the percentage of college freshmen who remain in the institution for a single year or less. The figures presented by him were secured from the registrars or deans of 107 institutions, as follows:

	Freshman Enrolment	Freshman Mortality Rate
32 state universities.	26,986	33.3%
18 state colleges	9,272	31.4%
43 privately supported universities and colleges	15,187	28.0%
22 schools of technology	10,745	34.4%
6 miscellaneous	3,636	30.5%
Net total 107 institutions	57,891	32.0%

The above figures were supposed to represent the average experience of the institutions for a period of eight years. Oberlin's average, as reported by Miss Wolcott during the eight-year period concerned, was 26.5% (Reports, 1921-22).

With the preceding facts before us we are ready now to appreciate the very significant experience of Oberlin in retaining for graduation the students who in the freshman year of their college course achieved "Freshman Honors." Beginning with the year 1905-06, "Freshman Honors" have been given, at first to the highest 10 of the class and later extended to include the highest 10 per cent of the class, the award being based on high scholarship grades during the first semester of the freshman year. The success that Oberlin has had in holding these freshman honor students for later enrolment as Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, and finally for graduation may be seen from the following table:

Table Showing the Percentage of Freshman Honor Students Who Return to Oberlin for Later Study and for Graduation

1922-23	36	36	100.	33	91.7
1923-24	36	33	91.7

The records for the year 1908-09 are not complete, and the table includes only 18 of the 30 who undoubtedly belonged in the group.

In 1918-19 no attempt was made to compile a Freshman Honor List. The work of the College was so interrupted by the presence of the S. A. T. C. that the scholarship records of Freshmen were not computed in the usual way.

A careful study of this table shows that during the years 1905-06 to 1923-24 inclusive a total of 570 students have received Freshman Honors, and of this total 512 came back to Oberlin for Sophomore year enrolment, representing 89.9 percent. This loss of 10 per cent should be compared with the average loss experienced in passing from the freshman year to the sophomore year, as reported on page 55. The loss of these most desirable students is less than half the average loss in passing from the freshman year to the sophomore year. During the last three years there have been 107 students on the Freshman Honor Lists, and only 5 of this number have failed to return for their sophomore year.

A similar study of the return of Freshman Honor students for junior year enrolment shows a total of 450 out of 534, the percentage being 77.5. The figure for the senior year is 369 out of a total of 498, the percentage being 74.1.

When it comes to actual graduation the table shows the graduation of 345 out of a total of 463 who received Freshman Honors, the percentage being 74.5. Death, ill health, marriage, financial difficulties, the necessity of entering upon professional and technical work before the completion of Liberal Arts training, and enrolment at other colleges and universities because of geographical considerations or because of family connections,—these are the reasons for the non-return to Oberlin of the relatively few Freshman Honor students who have not continued their study in this College. It rarely occurs that students in this group withdraw from Oberlin to enroll in other institutions for work in Liberal Arts course because of dissatisfaction either with Oberlin standards of scholarship or with student life in Oberlin.

The Graduate School of Theology

The first annual report of Professor Graham as Dean of the Graduate School of Theology is presented in full;

In making my first annual report as Dean of the School of Theology, I wish to give hearty testimony to the fine spirit of coöperation on the part of the Faculty and student body which the year has brought. The members of the Faculty have given themselves unstintedly to their work and without exception the students have applied themselves seriously. The Faculty believes that the work of the last year has been the most consistent work of a decade. The fine spirit of the student body was manifested in the generous response which they made during the Endowment Campaign.

As usual, the members of the Faculty have been called upon to give a wide variety of service in churches, Christian conferences, colleges and universities. This work has been done during occasional absences throughout the school year and in vacation. It is difficult to overestimate the contribution our Faculty is constantly making to the vital religious movements of our time by their consistent "friendly and honest" leadership of these religious movements.

During the year Dr. Bosworth's book on "The Life and Teaching of Jesus" was published. It has made a wide and splendid impression. It is being generally recommended to student groups and will without question prove as helpful to this student generation as his earlier study texts on "The Life of Jesus" proved to be to the student world of twenty-five years ago.

The members of the Faculty have contributed occasional articles to religious and technical magazines. Professor Youtz and Professor Hannah have books in the publisher's hands which will appear very shortly.

The School of Theology continues to maintain the high standard of theological education to which it has so long devoted itself. This tends to make it more than ordinarily difficult to increase our enrolment. Not only have we no denominational connection to assist us, but we are a school in a small community pursuing an educational policy which is stricter than that followed by schools of such standing as Chicago, Yale and Hartford. It is not unusual for me to write students saying that we are not able to extend them credits which would be allowed them in those other schools and to have them reply stating that under the circumstances they would enroll in one of the other institutions.

To overcome the handicap which arises from the above three factors it appears that the following steps should be taken as soon as possible:

First, we should have a new theological building or buildings. Council Hall is clearly inadequate. Condemned by the State Building Department, arranged in a makeshift way to meet the Building Inspector's demand, it makes a dismal impression upon the members of the college classes who are planning to enter the ministry, and hinders the students who come to study Theology from doing their best work. The plans which are on hand for the new theological group are modest in comparison with buildings under way for other schools. These plans should be realized, if possible, within the next eighteen months.

Second, we must come into closer relation with the work of the churches in Lorain, Elyria, and Cleveland. These communities offer us fine city laboratories for our students. Many of them work in these cities now, but we must have a larger student employment fund if we are to take full advantage of the city opportunities. The addition of $38,269.21 to these scholarship funds this year is a welcome help.

Third, we should enrich our curriculum by taking fuller advantage of our relation to the other departments in Oberlin College, and to the exceptional work in Religious Education which is being done in the United Church. The Faculty Committee on Curriculum is now studying this matter and believes that we can arrange a more complete course with a minimum of expense.

The time is not far distant when we shall need an additional member of the Faculty who will make possible some division of the work now carried by the Department of Religious Education. This addition would help us to meet the growing requirements of the churches for training in Religious Education and would also enable us to more closely supervise the field work of the students.

Dean Graham suggests some forward steps that ought to be taken as soon as possible, and that should especially help in the building up of the body of our theological students. It seems a pity that most of our theological schools should be maintaining lower standards for the ministry than for the other professions, and yet it is hardly possible for one theological school to stand alone, or nearly alone, in the maintenance of standards.

The Dean calls attention to the very fine addition that has been made during the year under review to our scholarship funds, and has also noted the important service which the theological Faculty are rendering through addresses and conferences.

The Conservatory of Music

The year brought one very important change in the Heads of Departments, in the retirement of Professor Charles W. Morrison from the Directorship of the Conservatory of Music.

Professor Morrison graduated from the Conservatory in 1880 and was at once made an Instructor in Pianoforte for the two years 1880-82. During the three following years, 1882-85, he was studying abroad. He then returned to his Instructorship and held that rank for the seven years, 1885-92. He was then promoted to a Professorship in Pianoforte. He was elected Director of the Conservatory in 1902. And thus at his retirement he had completed twenty-two years as Director, and forty-four years of connection with the Conservatory Faculty—a remarkable term of service.

Under his Directorship important gains were made. June 22, 1903, the Trustees voted that hereafter students in the Conservatory of Music should before graduation satisfy college entrance requirements. In view of this action a degree in Music, that of Bachelor of Music (Mus.B.), has since 1903 been conferred upon the graduates of the Conservatory of Music. Since September, 1908, all students admitted to the Conservatory Department have been held for college entrance requirements.

In June, 1913, the number of students in the Conservatory of Music was limited to 400, a limit which has been maintained since that time.

In 1921 the Supervisors Training Course in School Music was extended from three to four years and the degree of Bachelor of School Music was authorized for its graduates.

The growth in the number of graduates during Professor Morrison's term of service is indicated by the following figures: During the 31 years before 1903, the Conservatory had 144 graduates—an average of 4.6 a year; during the 22 years of Professor Morrison's administration there were 363 graduates—an average of 17 a year.

A comparison of the Conservatory Faculties of 1902-03 and 1923-24 shows that the Faculty of 1923-24 numbered 40, as over against 28 for the Faculty of 1902-03. The Faculty for 1902-03 had 10 teachers of professorial rank, 13 instructors, 3 teachers, and 2 administrative officers; while the Faculty of 1923-24 enrolled 18 professors, 3 associate professors, 8 assistant professors (29 of professorial rank in all), 6 instructors, and 5 administrative officers. This registers not only a considerably larger Faculty for the closing year of Professor Morrison's administration, but also a much larger proportion of teachers of professorial rank.

The Conservatory of Music has also registered some notable advances in buildings during Director Morrison's administration. In the years 1903 and 1904 the concert hall was remodeled, 200 additional seats added to the audience room, and other repairs made. In 1910 Rice Memorial Hall was erected, named in honor of the life service of Professor Fenelon B. and Mrs. Helen M. Rice. The total cost for building and equipment was $110,000. Barrows House, the former home of President Barrows, was purchased in 1916 and serves as a dormitory and center of social life of the Conservatory women. Johnson House, originally the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Johnson, was remodeled in 1920 as a dormitory for Conservatory women. Allencroft, the former residence of Dr. Dudley Allen, was remodeled and opened for use as a dormitory for First-Year Conservatory women in 1914.

This long record of achievement speaks for itself; and both the College and Professor Morrison are to be congratulated upon it. The President voices the feeling of the entire Faculty in expressing his sincere regret in losing from the Faculty Professor and Mrs. Morrison after these many years of coöperation and fellowship in the work of the College.

The report of the Director of the Conservatory of Music, covering Professor Morrison's closing year of service, is given entire:

I have the honor to present my twenty-second and last report as Director of the Conservatory, having reached the retiring age at the end of the year under review.

I was appointed as Director by the Trustees in 1902, after serving as Chairman of the Executive Committee appointed after the death of Professor Rice in 1901. It has been an inestimable privilege to work under a regime where every department of the College, from the President down, has shown such friendly coöperation and sympathetic interest for the good of the Conservatory, and I can only wish for my successor a continuance of the same happy experience.

Mr. Frank H. Shaw had the unusual compliment of receiving the unanimous vote from the Appointment Committee of the Conservatory, of the General Faculty, and of the Board of Trustees for Director of the Conservatory, and began his work in September of this year. Those of us who know Mr. Shaw best have unbounded confidence in his musical ability and his tact and judgment in all practical affairs. He graduated from the Conservatory in 1907 and after some years of teaching and study abroad was appointed Director of the Conservatory at Cornell College, Iowa, where he has made a most marked success.

Mr. Arthur S. Kimball also reached the retiring age at the end of this year, after a continuous service of forty-one years. His retirement leaves a void in our Faculty and in the musical life of the Church which will be a long time in filling, if it is ever filled. His success as a vocal teacher and his exquisite taste and refinement as a musician and choir leader have made his work unique. He has made a lasting impression on many of his pupils who have become teachers in our own Conservatory and leaders of musical influence elsewhere. Mr. Kimball will now turn his attention to the kindred art of painting, which has been his avocation for so many years, and in which he has done so much, and we wish for him many years of happiness in that delightful Art in which he has achieved so much success.

Mr. Herbert Harroun returns to his work in the vocal department after a year's leave of absence for study in New York. His appearance in public since his return shows conclusively that he has had a most successful year of study and rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Adams were given a leave of absence for one year, which they are spending in Paris. They are hearing many concerts and studying with some of the principal teachers of Paris and will return next fall full of their enthusiasm for Oberlin and with renewed skill in their teaching.

The new teachers who begin their work this fall are Mr. Gilbert Wilson and Mrs. Edith Hall, both in the Vocal Department.

The great need of an organ building is emphasized by a number of the Conservatory Faculty.

Director Morrison's tribute to Professor Kimball, who retired at the close of the year under review, is so fitting and so adequate, that it leaves little for anyone else to say. The President gladly joins in this significant tribute.

The following statistics show the number of students enrolled in the various subjects during the year 1923-24:

	First Semester	Second Semester
Pianoforte	378	354
Organ	130	124
Singing	211	199
Violin	73	58

Children's Department — Piano	92	97
Children's Department — Violin	24	22

The following musical organizations and artists have appeared under Conservatory management during the past year:

The Cleveland Symphony Orchestra
Mr. Frederic Baer, song recital
Mr. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist
Mr. Guy Maier and Mr. Lee Pattison, two-piano recital
Mr. Alberto Salvi, harp recital
Mr. Pablo Casals, 'cellist
The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra
Mr. Theo Karle, song recital
The Flonzaley String Quartet
Mr. Carl Friedberg, pianist
Miss Emmy Krueger, song recital
The Oberlin Conservatory Trio

The report of the Dean of Conservatory Women is presented practically entire. It requires no comment.

Although the entering class of 1923-24 was smaller than usual, having only 135 women, the return of an unusually large number from the other classes made the total about 347.

Mrs. Seaman resigned her position at Allencroft to accept the position of Head of Baldwin Cottage. I wish to pay tribute to the fine work of Mrs. Seaman, who for six years was Head of Allencroft, a house used exclusively for first-year Conservatory women. Her work with Conservatory Freshmen was a distinct contribution to the welfare of the group. That our patrons and old students appreciated Allencroft and the work done by Mrs. Seaman is evidenced by the large number of requests that come in for places there. Miss Charlotte King of Cleveland was appointed to take Mrs. Seaman's place. Mrs. Arnold resigned her position as matron of Johnson after two years of service. Genuine appreciation of her gentleness and refinement was expressed by her household and all who knew her. Mrs. Wagoner, former matron of Lord Cottage, was appointed as Head of Johnson House.

From the standpoint of discipline the year was a difficult one, although the general spirit was unusually fine in many ways. The withdrawal of two Conservatory women was requested because of questionable reputation and influence. Three other women were dropped after thorough investigation of serious charges. Two of these were Freshmen.

The Conservatory faculty passed a rule that certificates of health and recommendations of character be required of all students entering the Conservatory in the future.

The first half of last year was marked by a kind of spiritual depression and pessimism among some students, but the shock of events seemed to bring about an awakening and such a personal moral responsibility among quite a number of students as has not been evidenced in a number of years. This has already resulted in a marked difference in the attitude of an appreciable number of both men and women toward some present day standards.

As chairman of the committee in charge of the management of Browning House I wish to submit the following report. The new plan of dispensing with a matron and putting both the household management and the nursing in the hands of two professional nurses has proved most successful. The following figures are approximately correct. The income from patients in 1922-23 was about $2,583, while that of 1923-24 was $2,984, showing an increase of income amounting to $401. Last year the expenditure for food, labor, and laundry was reduced about $483. The income from the additional beds, the reduction of the running expenses, and the nursing of contagious diseases in the Detention hospital by our own nurses more than met the extra expense of the salary for the second nurse, so that Browning House fell only $88 behind the amount estimated in the budget, which was the best financial record of any year since the opening of the infirmary. I wish to express appreciation of the work of Mrs. Naomi Hecker Sprunger, who after four years of efficient service, resigned her position as College nurse. Last year there was only one case each of diphtheria, measles, chicken pox, and mumps. This is a gratifying record and shows excellent management in the prevention of the spread of contagious diseases. Browning House has also given efficient service in the treatment of colds and similar diseases. Very few of our young women lost more than three days at a time from their work because of illness of this kind. Last year Browning House took care of 374 patients 1,177¼ days.

The Library

The gifts to the Library have already been mentioned in connection with the other gifts of the year. The report of the Librarian is given almost entire. The Librarian notes the unusual changes in the staff of the Library for the year under review, including the retirement of Miss Spaulding, Head Cataloguer, after more than thirty-two years of service; and the deaths of two other valued members of the Staff, Miss Minnie M. Hart and Miss Annie Arnold:—

On the 15th of October, 1923, Miss Eoline Spaulding, Head Cataloguer, retired from service after more than thirty-two years of connection with the Library. She was appointed Assistant Cataloguer in 1892; in 1895, she was made Head Cataloguer, and retained that position until her retirement in 1924. Always faithful, always at her post, and always considerate and thoughtful, she has made a very important contribution to the development of the Library, and the best wishes of all the Staff follow her into her retirement.

On January 15th, 1924, Miss Minnie M. Hart, Children's Librarian, died from pneumonia. Although Miss Hart had been comparatively few years in the Library, her enthusiasm for her work, and her devotion to it, had won all hearts. The children loved her and she loved them, and it is a great regret to all, both users of the Library and members of the Library Staff that her life was brought so early to its closing.

On February 23d, 1924, Miss Annie P. Arnold, who, for a number of years, had been the Morning Assistant at the Reserve Book Desk, died as the result of an attack of pneumonia, after an illness of barely one week. Miss Arnold possessed such fine womanly qualities and was so gracious and friendly in all her relations with the students, that her loss was keenly felt. She enjoyed the work in the Library and gave evidence thereof by leaving a fund of $500 to the Library, the income of which will be spent in adding to the Library the nature-books of which she was so fond.

The close of the year witnessed the temporary withdrawal of Miss Elizabeth J. McCloy, Reference Librarian, and Miss Esther A. Close, for many years a most valued assistant in the Cataloguing department. While we hope these absences are but temporary, the Staff for the year 1924-25 contains, because of these absences, fewer persons of long service than has been the case for many years.

The Librarian reports as follows on the additions to the library and upon its present size:

During the year there were added to the library:

Bound volumes	10,931
Unbound volumes	3,296
Numbers of magazines.....	21,041
Numbers of newspapers.....	4,565
Maps and charts (estimated).....	250
Photographs, coins, etc. (estimated).....	500

Total number of pieces.....40,583

This is a number slightly larger than the receipts of the preceding year, and represents a decidedly larger average than usual.

The Library, on September 1, 1924, contained the following:

Bound volumes	251,904
Unbound volumes and pamphlets.....	180,897
Unbound volumes of newspapers.....	7,100
Magazines, incomplete, unbound volumes...	22,500
Maps, charts, etc. (estimated).....	6,750
Manuscript material
Number of filing cases filled.....	276
Coins, prints, photographs, etc. (estimated)	3,150

Total 472,577

In addition to this, the Library possesses about 130,000 duplicates, available for exchange.

Of the additions of the year, a record can be given only for bound volumes; of these

- 3,812 were purchased,
- 5,466 were received by gift, as already noted,
- 1,653 were obtained by exchange.

As usual, the great preponderance of the books added was of distinctly recent material; 3 books belonging to the 15th century, 5 to the 16th, 16 to the 17th, 152 to the 18th, 2,591 to the 19th, and 8,164 originating in the 20th century. While the number of older books is somewhat greater than in most recent years, it is still a matter of regret that, with the rapidly increasing price of the older books, we are able to add so few of them.

The work of the various departments of the Library is briefly summarized:

Work of the Catalogue Department

With the beginning of a new administration in the Catalogue Department, certain important changes have been introduced. The shelf list, which, all these years, has been kept upon the small sized cards, has now been equipped with standard card cases, in order that we may utilize Library of Congress cards for the shelf list. This has involved an expenditure of nearly $400 for cases of standard size, but will undoubtedly justify itself in future years by the saving in the preparation of shelf list cards.

An endeavor has also been made to handle all problems of revision of the catalogue as they arise, instead of postponing them to some distant day when there was to be time for such needed corrections. The effect of this new program is shown in the decreased number of new books catalogued and the greatly increased number of books revised, changed, and corrected. With no larger force than is available, this produces temporary delay in the cataloguing, but it is hoped that it will presently increase the speed at which the books can be entered.

During the year 9,637 bound volumes, and 3,451 pamphlets were catalogued. These required the preparation of 41,109 new cards, the alteration, by the giving of additional information, of 10,873 cards, and the changing, because of revision, of 7,114 cards. 9,885 cards were withdrawn, being replaced by the printed cards of the Library of Congress. Our card catalogue is now estimated to contain 820,000 cards. 3,440 volumes and 389 pamphlets were changed by revision, and 155 pamphlets were withdrawn as duplicates. 1,007 cards were made for the library of the Art Museum, 705 for the Children's Room, 1,610 for the Open Shelf Room, and 91 for the collection in connection with the Women's Gymnasium.

The force of the Cataloguing Room is inadequate for the number of books added, and it is hoped that, another year, the college budget will warrant the addition of at least one new Cataloguer.

Work in the Reference and Circulation Division

During the year the Library was open 305 days. The total number of readers in all rooms was 227,811, making an average attendance through the entire year of 746 per day. Of course, as the vacation attendance is much smaller, the average for the college year far exceeded this.

The number of books drawn for outside reading was 86,335; these books were drawn by 6,109 borrowers; this number includes: members of the Faculty and their families, 421; students, 2,104; citizens of Oberlin, 3,535; people from outside of Oberlin, 98; other libraries, 14. While there is some duplication in these figures, since the same person may draw from two or more rooms, yet it is evident that the Library is reaching the great majority of the inhabitants of Oberlin.

Work of the Shelf Department

The problem of finding shelf room for the new books, grows increasingly difficult. As the additions for the year were practically 11,000 volumes, this required, assuming 10 books to the foot, 1100 feet of new shelving, simply to provide for the additions of the year. Shelves have been added along the sides of the ramp leading from the third floor to the fifth level of the stack, the only remaining place in the stack unoccupied by books; but it has been with the greatest difficulty, even with this additional space, that the books of the year have been housed. Whenever possible, unoccupied spaces in the Seminar Rooms have been utilized by the transfer of books from the stack and, in this way, we managed to complete the year without the necessity of piling books upon the floor. For the coming year, provision has been made in the budget for the erecting of two-story wooden stacks in the two downstairs work-rooms of the Library. We cannot afford to spare the space of these work-rooms, needing them for the workers; we shall be obliged, as these stacks are built, to place these workers in the already crowded work-rooms on the second floor, but this seemed the only way in which space for the incoming books of the year could be provided. We have crowded our shelves until it is with difficulty that a new book can be added and all effective display and distinguishing of new classes by spacing on the shelves, has been abandoned. It is hoped that our condition may attract the attention of some friend of libraries, so that a suitable addition may be speedily provided.

For the coming year, the additional income provided by the new Endowment, has permitted the Trustees to make an increase in the amount available for books. This addition must not be thought of as enlargement, but rather as making good the loss which the Library has suffered through the increased price of books. The $10,000 now provided for books no more than equals, in purchasing power, the $6,200 which the College appropriated at the beginning of the war; so that, while this addition is gratefully welcome because it restores the Library to its pre-war condition, it must not be thought of as permitting any essential enlargement.

We hope the coming years may bring the Library the greatly needed increases, so that the Library may really take the place which its size and standing, as the largest college library in the United States, deserves.

Other General Officers

There remains to be reviewed the work of various other officers of the College, who have to do with certain aspects of the work of the entire institution: the Director of the Men's Gymnasium, the Director of Athletics, the Director of the Women's Gymnasium, the Director of Recreation, the Secretary of the Bureau of Appointments, the Director of the Summer Session, and the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds.

For the department of Physical Education Dr. Morrison, Director of the Men's Gymnasium, submits an extended report, only a brief abstract of which is possible in this place. The staff of the department makes a very broad interpretation of Physical Education. Physical activity is the basic thing in the work of the department, yet it is conditioned upon and very closely related to an environment that is wholesome, upon medical examinations and conferences, instruction in matters pertaining to health, development of health habits, and also the preparation of teachers of Physical Education.

During the year the instruction in Hygiene was reorganized in line with recommendations made by the department the year previous. The number of students taking the work this year and their interest in the work warrants the belief that this reorganization has been of benefit. With regard to the practical work in Physical Education Dr. Morrison records that the past year was very satisfactory. The students had never been more interested nor had they shown a better morale than they did last year. The first aim of the department was to give the men a rich experience in activities that are most helpful in developing the moral and social qualities characteristic of Christian and educated men. A part of the benefit coming to the students was very likely due to an innovation which was tried out last year in having a class for all faculty instructors and student squad leaders. This class met for two hours every Wednesday night, under the direction of Mr. Savage, who went over carefully the work to be done the following week. The work of this class is to be developed and carried on as a permanent feature of the department.

Dr. Morrison emphasizes again the need of the men who are somewhat physically handicapped, to have expert advice and instruction of the members of the Physical Education staff. It is a work which is much appreciated by parents and friends, but a work which is exceedingly time-consuming and difficult to handle because of already crowded schedules. A certain amount of this work is being done and records of the results accomplished are being kept so that the members of the department may be aware of the success of the special exercises advised.

A very important part of the work of the department during the past year was in giving medical examinations, conferences, and first aid. The voluntary assistance of Doctors G. C. Jameson and H. F. Vaughan at the beginning of the year is highly appreciated. The total number examined was 198. Of these 185 were Freshmen. Personal history blanks, largely of a medical nature, but including some anthropometric measurements, were filled out for each student. The giving of the examinations and the cataloguing of defects found are only of statistical value, unless something is done to help the student to regain his normal condition. The work of the past year cannot be considered entirely successful in this follow-up work, simply because of lack of time. Some students came in voluntarily for conference and special cases received attention. In addition to the routine examinations and conferences, Dr. Morrison attempted to help the men by giving advice and treating minor conditions. The extent of this work may be imagined when it is noted that the total number of calls for this service amounted to 757. Dr. Morrison also assumed the responsibility of taking care of the varsity athletes. This work involved attendance at athletic contests and during the football season an office hour in the late afternoon. Special examinations were given to the men on the varsity squads, a total of 82 additional examinations being included in this list.

Dr. Morrison calls attention to the fact that there is a strong demand for men trained in physical education and holding college degrees. He notes an increase in the enrolment in the major in Physical Education. He feels that a stronger emphasis should be placed upon the major in Physical Education, and notes that some changes in the requirements have been made and that others will be made in the near future, with the idea of strengthening the major.

The Warner Gymnasium is used by both college and community very extensively for work in physical education and recreation. Of 631 men listed in the college catalogue, 544 were enrolled in the Gymnasium. In addition to these, members of the Faculty, Business College students, citizens of Oberlin, and boys of Oberlin bring up the total enrolled in the Gymnasium to 688. The regular classes in Physical Education require 864 meetings in the Gymnasium during the year; intramural contests in basketball, track, and handball, 302 meetings; varsity basketball, including practice and games, 81 meetings; boys club meetings, 53; Business College, 31; civilian's class 45; and other miscellaneous affairs, including parties, football banquet, alumni dinner, basketball tournament, etc., etc., bringing up the total to 1,410 meetings. The amount of money taken in for the use of the Gymnasium was $432.75.

The Director of the Gymnasium states as the one great need of the department of Physical Education the planning of a better plant in which to carry out their activities in Physical Education. He suggests that when a new gymnasium for men may be secured, the Warner Gymnasium may be utilized as a recreational center. He feels that another instructor for the department is needed in order to provide for taking care of the physical needs of men who for one reason or another are not able to do the work of the regular gymnasium classes, and to assist in the development of the intramural athletics.

The report of Professor C. W. Savage, Director of Athletics and Senior Professor of the department of Physical Education, bears witness to the "splendid enthusiasm of Dr. Morrison," and further emphasizes Dr. Morrison's statement of gains and needs for the department of Physical Education.

Professor Savage thus summarizes the gains of the year:

A better distribution of the work of administration and a new division in the teaching of both theory and practice of the major in Physical Education has proven a gain from every point of view. An increased interest in our physical education major for men is one of the gratifying evidences of the greater strength of our work. The increased accessibility of Dr. Morrison for consultation has made a great contribution to the health and happiness of our men and can not have failed to have lessened the absence from college work on account of sickness.

Let me again stress the point that Oberlin has gained a most enviable reputation for turning out well-trained young men for physical education. We are not able as yet to make even a small proportion of the appointments we are asked to fill. Oberlin can perform a splendid service to the cause of higher education and to the welfare of the nation by meeting more fully this demand. •

May we not point with justifiable pride to the position and influence of the following Oberlin men in physical education: Dr. Dudley B. Reed, University of Chicago; Dr. Thomas D. Wood and Dr. Jesse F. Williams, Teachers' College, Columbia University; Dr. Edwin Fauver, University of Rochester; Dr. Edgar Fauver, Wesleyan University (Conn.); Dr. J. H. Nichols, Ohio State University; Professor T. N. Metcalf, Iowa Agricultural College; Professor Louis F. Keller, University of Minnesota; Professor O. C. Bird, Ohio University; Professor O. M. Nikoloff, University of Cincinnati; Professor C. D. Giaque, Ohio University; Mr. Roy E. Tillotson, Miami University; Mr. Fred J. Martin, Wesleyan University (Conn.); Mr. Thomas A. Neill, Western Reserve University; Mr. Warren E. Steller, Bowling Green Normal; Mr. Arthur R. Winters, Case School of Applied Science; and Mr. Willis O. Hunter, University of Southern California. Many other Oberlin men are directors or influential teachers and coaches in important city systems, city high schools, and playground systems. Two of our graduates have recently established state public school systems of Physical Education. Surely this is a fine record for an institution of our size.

The needs include an additional man to work with special cases needing corrective treatment, and another to have special charge of the intramural activities and recreation for all men, and the need of a "larger and more modern gymnasium affording more playing floors for indoor games and special rooms for handball, squash, rackets, boxing, and wrestling, and a swimming pool." There is very great need also of new stands for the athletic field and for an entrance building affording gateways, ticket booths, and retiring rooms.

The sports of the year may be briefly summarized: In intramural athletics, intramural football suffered for lack of a director and coach; Mr. Keller and Mr. McPhee, although busy with coaching, coöperated in the conduct of the regular interclass competition. A schedule of twelve games was played. A splendid season of inter-class and inter-house basketball was carried through under the direction of Mr. McPhee. The inter-class activities of the spring season were almost completely ruined by unfavorable weather conditions.

In intercollegiate athletics Oberlin's record in football was not up to our traditional standard. Of our regular schedule of eight games, four were won, one was tied, and three were lost. Our cross-country squad had the personal supervision of Mr. Ray Buker, a student in the Graduate School of Theology, training for the American Olympic Team, and made a fine record during the season. The basketball season was more satisfactory than the football, because of a decided change for the better in morale, yet the record of six games won and six lost was not as good as usual. The intercollegiate baseball season was carried on under most adverse weather conditions. Of the twelve games scheduled, four were won, four lost and four called off on account of rain. In the Ohio Conference track competition Oberlin was defeated by Miami University in a dual meet early in the season; later we defeated Case and Denison in dual meets, and won over Mt. Union and Western Reserve in a triangular meet. Oberlin won third in the "Big Six Meet" held at Granville. Coach McPhee, Professor Savage feels, deserves a great deal of credit for having developed a well balanced team from quite ordinary material. Without a coach, and hampered by wet courts, our tennis team never developed to our usual standards.

The financial statement of the intercollegiate athletics account is summarized as follows:

Dr. Moulton, Director of the Women's Gymnasium, refers again to the exceedingly crowded program of credit classes in the Women's Gymnasium, and also to the fact that all of the classes are too large for good work or individual attention. Locker and shower rooms are so crowded that many girls coming in from sports are unable to take showers. No member of the staff is able to have a private office for uninterrupted conferences. The Gymnasium has no pool for use of students in swimming, and the Elyria Y. M. C. A. pool is used one afternoon each week. The gymnasium building is very much in need of repairs; roof, plumbing, and the plaster call for constant attention. It is difficult to exaggerate the crying need of an adequate women's gymnasium and women's building. Dr. Moulton mentions the purchase by the College of the Williams' cottage in the Oberlin Colony at the Lake. This has been named the Hanna Cottage and the keys of the Cottage have been presented to Doctor Hanna. Doctor Hanna has chosen a room in the Cottage, which will be furnished with some of her things and used by her whenever she finds it possible. During the summer the department bought three canoes, and an ingenious collapsible diving platform was constructed for the use of the girls at the Camp. Dr. Moulton refers to the great need of trained women for work in remedial gymnastics, and hopes that some one thoroughly trained in this line can be added to the department to help with this work. Instead of the usual routine physical re-examinations in the spring, the girls with similar difficulties were met in small groups, and individual examinations, help, and advice given them. It seems to the Director that more enthusiasm and intelligent coöperation are obtained in this way than by the routine examinations, and the plan this year is to have many more such conferences, beginning in the fall and carried on during the year. It is desirable, too, to have every new student, whether College or Conservatory, of whatever class, send in the same health statements and physician's certificates as are now required of the College Freshmen only. These statements and certificates are of distinct help in the work of the department of Physical Education for Women. It would be well also to require the routine examination here of all incoming students, whether enrolled in Physical Education classes or not. Dr. Moulton speaks gratefully of the help of Dr. Ethel Winston, of Cincinnati, who helped with the medical examinations last fall.

The Director of Recreation, Mrs. Ellen Birdseye Hatch, calls attention to a few decided changes in the recreation policy of the College during the year 1923-24.

Faculty ruling in the spring of 1923 limited the number of dances to be given by the classes. The Freshmen were not to be permitted to hold class dances, and the Sophomores none until the second semester. This resulted in Thanksgiving parties for the two classes mentioned where the program had to be carefully arranged. To plan for a class dance is no particular burden for Social Chairmen. Members of the class who like to dance attend and the success of the evening is certain. To plan and carry through a program without dancing takes enthusiasm and ingenuity. From the standpoint of numbers and interest the Freshman party was very successful. Unfortunately a very small number of Sophomores came to the Sophomore party.

Permission for use of Rowland Hall, also voted by the Faculty in the spring of 1923, made it possible to schedule three dances the same evening, the Women's Gymnasium and Warner Gymnasium being the two other available places. It was found that this limited the number of invitations a man could accept, because of conflicting dates.

The working out of two other changes in the regulations should be mentioned. The fact that all social affairs given by a class must be paid for by those attending brought about more careful planning as to cost, and class funds were saved which had previously been recklessly spent on hikes and supper parties. The second change was in regard to numbers necessary for permission to give a dance. Every organization had to have at least forty couples, one of each couple being a bona fide member of the organization. The expense of the dance was lessened, many boarding houses and clubs having to join with another group to make the number. This also automatically lessened the number of dances during the year.

The dates for practically all social affairs of the year were made in the first month. Each organization knew definitely when it could entertain and a great amount of time and energy was saved by making the calendar of affairs so early in the year.

During the first semester, beginner's night was held every Wednesday night from 7 to 8 o'clock in the Women's Gymnasium. Approximately 85 men and women were enrolled in the class. The Wednesday night Play Hour, held in the same place the second semester, proved to be popular. The program was made up of games and Folk Dancing. In warm weather the games were played outside in the enclosed yard.

I am pleased to report for the year decided improvement in student management of social affairs,—much simpler decorations used and less money spent on favors, programs, and orchestras, except the Proms where the cost of the tickets was the same as that of the preceding year. Several boarding houses employed student orchestras for their house dances. The type of dancing showed improvement over the preceding years, due, no doubt, to a change for the better in the style of dancing all over the country.

Mrs. Hatch calls special attention to the total inadequacy of the Rice Hall basement as a recreation hall, and feels that the best results in our recreation policy cannot be achieved without better accommodations.

The report of the Secretary of the Bureau of Appointments, Miss Ivanore V. Barnes, summarizes the work of the Bureau for the year. 301 graduates made use of the Bureau, for the most part by filing new credentials and having papers forwarded to prospective employers. 217 Seniors registered and had credentials placed on file. 9 under-classmen, who needed to work one or two years before completing college, registered in order that they might have confidential letters forwarded by us. There were 161 personal interviews with graduates (80 men and 81 women), 852 personal interviews with Seniors (259 men, 593 women), and 86 under-classmen (23 men, 63 women), a total of 1,099. These interviews were of not less than five minutes and many were a half hour or more in length. The interviews with Seniors were varied, including discussions of ways to find openings and of positions for which they had applied, requests for information on teaching requirements, requests for advice as to letters of application, requests for business leads, etc. 1,446 sets of credentials were sent out: 668 for graduates; 778 for Seniors and the few underclassmen registered with the Bureau. The number of school administrators and employers who visited the Bureau personally was slightly larger than in 1922-23 — 52 as compared with 41.

It is somewhat difficult to measure the service which a college employment bureau gives in the actual placement of its candidates; but we are certain of having placed 46 Seniors, 22 graduates, and 2 under-classmen in positions that were referred to us. In spite of the unfavorable employment conditions, both in teaching and business, the Bureau received 620 calls, only 95 less than the number received in 1922-23. The "Occupational Distribution of the Class of 1924" shows a high percentage of students (24.1 per cent) doing post-graduate study. A "comparison of occupational distribution" shows a decided drop in the percentage of those going into teaching immediately upon graduation.

While it has been possible to do only a limited amount of field work, what has been done has been decidedly helpful in conducting the work of the Bureau. Eight days of the Secretary's vacation were spent in New York, making business contacts, visiting placement bureaus, etc. Through the courtesy of Miss Doerschuk and Miss Hirth, it was possible to spend a full day in the "Bureau of Vocational Information." Seeing at first-hand something of the inside workings of this office was of great profit.

The help and coöperation of Professor E. A. Miller, who has acted as Faculty Adviser, and the assistance of professors in all of the departments in the matter of rating and recommending candidates for specific positions, have been invaluable.

The most urgent need of the Bureau for another year is an increase in the appropriation for clerical assistance and stenography.

The Director of the Summer Session, Professor E. A. Miller, reports an attendance of 195, the same enrolment as the preceding year. Of this 195 in attendance, 81 were men and 114 women. The number of instructors engaged was 18, all members of the regular Oberlin College Faculty. The present salary schedule in the summer sessions makes it possible to retain our own Faculty for work in the summer. The financial statement for the session shows a small surplus of $83.47, but the session has still to its credit $2,365.86. An attractive lecture and musical program was given to the students and the community.

The report of Mr. D. E. Lyon, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, briefly summarizes the work of the department of Buildings and Grounds. Preceding sections of this report have already brought into review much of the work in charge of the Superintendent, but attention may be called to certain particular points.

The Superintendent is particularly gratified that the new Allen Hospital is under construction, and is making good progress.

The meat and grocery department makes an even better showing than last year. The department handled food supplies amounting to $80,732.79 (as against $76,905.08 the preceding year), at an actual overhead cost of 6½ per cent (as over against 7 per cent the preceding year).

The heating plant was operated longer during the year under review than ever before, the weather conditions making it necessary to have heat until the last day of Commencement. During the year an automatic regulating valve was installed in each building, and should greatly increase the efficiency of the plant by maintaining a uniform pressure in each building. The College was able to make exceptionally good contracts for the heating plant and dormitory coal.

Under Mr. Bontrager's care the nursery, which was started two years ago, has developed to such a stage that we now have various trees and shrubs ready to use for replacements. The campus and grounds generally show Mr. Bontrager's care. The usual list of general repairs was carried out in the dormitories and other buildings.

The Superintendent expresses his grateful appreciation for the efficient way in which the work of the department was carried on during the Superintendent's illness in September.

The Work of the President

The chief work of the President during the year under review was that definitely connected with the Financial Campaign for four and one-half million dollars for endowment and buildings. The President gave up all his teaching and most of his regular administrative work for the year. His teaching was carried by Professor Bosworth and Professor Youtz; Professor Bosworth taking the two-hour semester required course with the college Seniors, and Professor Youtz taking the three-hour course with theological Seniors through the year. The President's administrative work was borne chiefly by Professor Bosworth, as Vice-President of the General Faculty, and by Dean Cole of the College of Arts and Sciences. There should also be hearty recognition of the large responsibility carried by the Secretary to the President.

The President and the Assistant to the President gave the most of the year to an active personal campaign among the alumni and former students and the general constituency of the College all over the country. Occasional returns to Oberlin helped to keep the office work in hand. A definite attempt was also made to enlarge the constituency of the College. In consequence the College has never made anything like so many personal contacts with alumni and friends in any year of its history. The Financial Campaign has already been so fully discussed, both in last year's report and in the earlier sections of this report, that there is no occasion to dwell upon it further. The President has been glad of the opportunity which the Campaign has given him to share in the attempt to secure a large addition to the resources of the College, and to knit up the relations with the friends of the College as never before; but he is clear that his present prime work must be devoted to the inner life of the College.

Because of the Campaign there has been little outside representation of the ordinary sort, but in reality unprecedented representation in the Campaign itself. Few days of the year have been without special engagements. For similar reasons the publications of the year have been very few and chiefly connected with the Campaign.

Professor Bosworth, as Chairman of the General Faculty, carried the heavy responsibility of the Chapel services for the year, as he did the preceding year. The President and the entire College are deeply grateful for the help given by Professor Bosworth at this vital point. As in the year preceding, the record of the Chapel services for the year shows a tendency toward a larger number of addresses, toward emphasis on musical services, and toward an increase in the number of addresses by significant visitors. There were 39 addresses given by members of the Faculty and by the President during the year, as compared with 29 the preceding year, and there were 30 addresses by speakers from outside the Faculty. The Chapel service has again been put several times in charge of the students themselves for the presentation of student special interests, including such special occasions as the Shansi presentation, the Student Chest presentation, the Honor Court presentation, and the Student Campaign Drive. There have been 22 Chapel services in which special music was brought in, besides six wholly musical vesper services, which once more replaced the regular Chapel services during the examination period. These services continue to be especially prized. The attendance was voluntary.

FACULTY

Deaths

Two emeritus professors have died during the year under review—Professor Louis Francis Miskovsky, Emeritus Associate Professor of Slavic Languages and Literatures, who died January 18, 1924; and Mrs. Harmonia Wattles Woodford, Emeritus Dean of Conservatory Women, who died August 21, 1924.

Professor Miskovsky graduated from the College of the City of New York in 1884 with the degree of S.B. He also had two years of Medicine there. At about this time several of the denominational missionary societies were ready to extend their mission work among the Slavs, but there were no workers. The Slavic Department of Oberlin was organized to meet this need, and to this work Professor Miskovsky was called and gave his life. He came to Oberlin in 1886 and was Instructor in the Slavic Languages from 1886-94, graduating from the theological department in the meantime in 1891, with the degree of D.B., and receiving also the degree of Master of Arts in 1892. He was made Principal of the Slavic Department and Professor of the Bohemian Language in 1894, and held that position until 1921. The need for just such a department, as the Slavic department was, had at that time practically ceased, and on that account Professor Miskovsky was transferred to the College of Arts and Sciences as Associate Professor of Slavic Languages and Literatures for the two years 1921-23. He had thus completed thirty-seven years of continuous service in connection with the Theological School and the College of Arts and Sciences before his retirement. Professor Miskovsky had an unusually keen mind, and wide and deep knowledge. He had thoroughly mastered the English language, and was well read in English, Bohemian, and Russian literature. He felt a deep devotion to the Slavic peoples and to the work among them. His death came suddenly after a severe illness.

Mrs. Harmonia Wattles Woodford graduated from Oberlin College with the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1872, and received also the degree of Master of Arts in 1875. She accepted the call to the newly created Deanship of Conservatory Women in 1900 and continued in the service for fourteen years, when she retired on account of her health. Mrs. Woodford gave herself unremittingly to the work of the Deanship and was deeply concerned for the most vital interests of the Conservatory. She won the love of the women under her charge, and called out from them a fine spirit.

Attention has been already called, in the Librarian's report, to the deaths of two valued members of the Library staff: Miss Minnie M. Hart, Children's Librarian, who died on January 15, 1924, and Miss Annie P. Arnold, who died on February 23, 1924.

Mrs. Giles W. Shurtleff was neither an Alumna of the College nor a member of its Faculty, but she had been so influential a personal factor in both college and community through many years that a word concerning her may fittingly find place here; for, as Miss Hosford has said of her: "Mrs. Shurtleff was one of that remarkable group of strong and clear-sighted women who did so much to stamp the character and build up the influence of early Oberlin." She died in Oberlin June 3, 1924, at the age of eighty-five years.

Faculty Changes

The various changes which have occurred in the Faculty during the year covered by this report, as authorized by the Trustees, or by the Prudential Committee, acting ad interim for the Trustees are here presented, arranged by departments.

The College of Arts and Sciences

RETIREMENT AS EMERITUS INSTRUCTOR

Miss Ella Louise Brownback, Instructor in English, after twenty-four years of service.

ENTERING ON WORK AFTER LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Louis Eleazer Lord, Professor of the Latin Language and Literature, after one year of absence for study, travel, and service as Professor in the American Academy in Rome.

Robert Allyn Budington, Professor of Zoölogy, after one year of absence for study and travel.

Clarence Ward, Professor of the History and Appreciation of Art, at the beginning of the second semester, after one semester of absence for study and travel.

Miss Florence Livingston Joy, Instructor in English, after one year of absence for study.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Charles Nelson Cole, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Professor of Latin, for one year, for study and travel.

David Richard Moore, Professor of History, for one year, for study and travel.

Clarence Ward, Professor of the History and Appreciation of Art, for the first semester, for study and travel.

Miss Susan Percival Nichols, Associate Professor of Botany, for one year, for study and travel.

Hermann H. Thornton, Assistant Professor of French, for one year, for study.

Lawrence Edwin Cole, Acting Assistant Professor of Psychology, for one year, for study.

RESIGNATIONS AND END OF TERM OF SERVICE

Samuel Robinson Williams, Professor of Physics, after sixteen years of service.

Herbert Adolphus Miller, Professor of Sociology, after ten years of service.

Louis Finley Keller, Assistant Professor of Physical Education, after nine years of service.

Otto Koppius, Assistant Professor of Physics, after four years of service.

Wilbert Lester Carr, Assistant Professor of Latin, after four years of service.

Udell Harrison Stallings, Instructor in Physical Education, after two years of service.

Miss Susan Horton Graffam, Assistant in Chemistry, after one year of service.

Miss Emily Fitje Bostwick, Assistant in the Registrar's office, after one year of service.

Miss Edith Carson, Assistant in Physical Education, after one semester of service. (Appointed, Prudential Committee, Jan. 14, 1924, for second semester of 1923-24.)

CHANGE OF TITLE

The record of the faculty changes of the year follows the usual order. Comment is confined to those of professorial rank. The changes as presented are arranged by departments, but the discussion of the different classes of changes follows each class through by departments; that is, the retirements in all departments, leaves of absence, resignations, etc., are grouped together. This double treatment is intended to give the advantages of both the arrangement by departments and the arrangement by the kind of change involved.

The retirements of the year include the retirement in the Conservatory of Music of Mr. Charles Walthall Morrison as emeritus director and professor of Pianoforte, after forty-four years of service, and the retirement of Mr. Arthur Kimball as emeritus professor of Singing, after forty-one years of service; the retirement in the College of Arts and Sciences of Miss Ella Louise Brownback as emeritus instructor in English, after twenty-four years of service; and the retirement of Miss Eunice Louise Foote, Assistant to the Secretary, after twenty-nine years of service and nearly two years of illness. All these retirements carry a retiring allowance with them. The retirement of Director Morrison and Professor Kimball have already been considered in the discussion of the report of the Director of the Conservatory. Miss Brownback retires at this time by her own choice, after twenty-four years of fine service, sixteen years in the Oberlin Academy and eight years in the College of Arts and Sciences. Miss Foote had given particular care for many years to the college calendars and the alumni records.

Five professors are included in those entering on work after leave of absence: three in the College of Arts and Sciences, one in the Graduate School of Theology, and one in the Conservatory of Music.

Leaves of absence were granted for the current year to six professors in the College of Arts and Sciences, two in the Conservatory of Music, and one in the Graduate School of Theology.

The resignations include those of Professor Williams, Professor H. A. Miller, Assistant Professor Keller, Assistant Professor Koppius, and Assistant Professor W. L. Carr,—all of the College of Arts and Sciences. The College regrets to lose from its service these able teachers.

There are twelve well-deserved promotions in professorial ranks in the College of Arts and Sciences. Professor Rogers is made Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences during Dean Cole's absence; four of the promotions are to permanent full professorships. In the Conservatory of Music there are two promotions of professorial rank. With these should be noted the promotion of Mr. H. W. Cargill, Assistant in the Treasurer's office, to be Assistant Treasurer,—a permanent appointment; and the appointment of Mr. Doren E. Lyon, Acting Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, to be Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds,—a permanent appointment.

The reappointments are in regular course and call for no special comment.

The new appointments of professorial rank in the College of Arts and Sciences include Dr. Lloyd W. Taylor, Professor of Physics; Dr. Newell L. Sims, Professor of Sociology; Mr. W. L. Hughes, Acting Assistant Professor of Physical Education; Dr. Frederick B. Artz, Acting Assistant Professor of History; Mr. Guy Charles Throner, Assistant Professor of Physical Education; Mr. Ole Andrew Simley, Acting Assistant Professor of Psychology; Mr. Emil L. Larson, Acting Assistant Professor of Education; and Mr. Carl C. Howe, Acting Assistant Professor of Physics. Brief statements concerning their academic records follow:

Dr. Lloyd W. Taylor is a native of Iowa, 31 years of age. He is a graduate of Grinnell College, class of 1914, degree of S.B. After one year of teaching in an Iowa high school and two years as instructor in Physics in Grinnell, he went into the army, where he was kept in instructional work until his discharge in 1919. He then went to the University of Chicago, working there as assistant and graduate student in Physics until 1922, when he received his Ph.D. degree and became a full-time instructor. While teaching he has found time to write a manual, now in press, on the subject of Optics. He is a man of great personal charm, most likely, it would seem, to become a complete successor to Professor Williams in that respect as well as in scholarship and teaching ability.

Dr. Newell L. Sims is a native of Indiana, 44 years of age. He holds the A.B. degree from both Tri-State College, Angola, Indiana, and the University of Kentucky. After graduation from Kentucky he was a minister for some years, holding pastorates at Carthage, Missouri, and at Scarsdale, New York. He was a graduate student in Columbia University from 1909 to 1912, when he took his Ph.D. degree in Sociology. He graduated also from Union Theological Seminary in the same year, with the degree of B.D. In addition to his theoretical preparation in Sociology at Columbia he had the advantage of a year's practical work in Columbus, Ohio, in connection with Dr. Gladden's church. He was then for five years professor of Sociology in the University of Florida, from which he transferred to the Massachusetts Agricultural College, where he has been for four years. He has been professor of Sociology for two summer sessions in Pennsylvania State College, and for one summer in Columbia. He is the author of three able books:

A Hoosier Village, 1912; Ultimate Democracy and Its Making, 1917; Rural Sociology, Ancient and Modern, 1919. Another book, also on Rural Sociology, is in the press.

Mr. William L. Hughes graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan University, with the degree of A.B., in 1919. As an undergraduate he was a distinguished athlete, playing in the three major sports through most of his course, and serving as captain of his team for one year in two of them. After graduation he was coach and director of athletics for two years in the Beatrice, Nebraska, high school, where his teams made remarkable records both years. In the army, where he was in service for two years, Mr. Hughes also attained distinction, rising from the rank of private to that of company commander and being recommended for a captaincy. Since leaving Beatrice he has been a student in Teachers College, Columbia University, working for the doctorate in the field of education. He is a man of fine personal qualities, and has been highly recommended by the authorities of all institutions with which he has been connected.

Dr. Frederick Binkerd Artz is a graduate of Oberlin College, with Phi Beta Kappa rank and Final Honors in History, in the class of 1916. After graduation he spent a year in Antioch College as instructor in History. He served two years in the army as interpreter for American officers in France. After a four-months' term in the University of Toulouse he went to Harvard University, where he was a graduate student for four years, and a teacher on part time, first as Austin Teaching Fellow, and later as Instructor for three years. He held the Frederick Sheldon Traveling Fellowship from Harvard in 1922-23, spending fourteen months in study and travel in Europe. He received the A.M. degree from Harvard in 1920, and the Ph.D. in June, 1924. He won prizes for essays on historical subjects for three successive years at Harvard. Mr. Artz is appointed for the one year to replace Professor Moore during his sabbatical year, but it is hoped that it may be possible, if Mr. Artz's services prove entirely acceptable, to expand the staff of the department for the succeeding year and retain him permanently.

Mr. Guy Charles Throner is a native of Ohio, 36 years of age. He is a graduate of Oberlin College, in the class of 1914, with the degree of A.B., and also with the diploma of the Teachers' Course in Physical Education. After graduation he was appointed as Assistant Director of Physical Education in Central High School, Minneapolis, Minnesota, for one year, and in 1915 was made head of the department, a position which he held until 1920. During this period he took part in various lines of Physical Education, both teaching and coaching, and also in summer play-ground work. From 1920 to 1924 he held the position of State Supervisor of Physical Education in the State Department of Public Instruction of Virginia. During this time he organized and supervised a state program in Physical Education for all the Public Elementary and High Schools of the State, also a six semester Teacher Training Course in Physical Educational Hygiene and Health Inspection for room teachers in the State Normal Colleges and Universities. He also wrote and published a State Syllabus on Physical Education for the grades and high schools of the state, and outlined specialists course for Physical Education for the University of Virginia which is being offered this fall.

Mr. Ole Andrew Simley is a graduate of Carleton College in the class of 1919, and received the Master's degree from the same institution in 1920. In 1920 he became a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin, where he remained from 1920 to 1924. He has completed the experimental work for a Doctor's thesis. From 1921 to 1924 Mr. Simley was an assistant instructor in Psychology at the University of Wisconsin, and during the summer of 1924 was an instructor in Psychology for the summer quarter at Iowa State Teachers' College.

Mr. Emil Leonard Larson is a graduate of the Kansas State Teachers College, with the degree of B.S. in Education, and of Teachers College, Columbia University, with the degree of A.M. He expects to receive the degree of Ph.D. from Columbia in February, 1925. His teaching experience covers nine years in all grades of the public school. He was in the army, in this country and in France, for two years. A wide range of teachers in Columbia recommended Mr. Larson very cordially for executive work in the schools or for a college position.

Mr. Carl E. Howe did his undergraduate work at Juniata College, graduating in 1919. Subsequently he taught for two years at Blue Ridge College and two at Juniata College. His graduate work, aggregating about one and one-half years, has been mainly done at the University of Chicago. He has interrupted this work to accept a one-year appointment as Acting Assistant Professor in the Physics department at Oberlin.

The new appointments in the Conservatory of Music include Mr. Frank H. Shaw, Director of the Conservatory of Music, and Mr. Gilbert Wilson, Professor of Singing. Professor Morrison, in his report for the year, has stated Mr. Shaw's fine academic record.

Mr. Wilson is a graduate of Mount Union College. His New York teachers include Robert Hosea, Sergei Klubansky and Arthur Woodruff. Mr. Wilson has had much experience in the field of opera, his debut having been with the Century Opera Company in New York City. For two years he was with the Aborn Opera Company, and later in Chicago. Mr. Wilson was the director of the American Grand Opera Company which produced Charles Wakefield Cadman's "Shanewis," at the Studebaker theatre. It is said that this was the first production of an American Grand opera by an entirely American cast. Mr. Wilson has a repertoire of many baritone leading roles.

An unusual number of new appointments have been made in the Library staff.

Outside Work and Lectures

About sixty members of the Faculty have represented the College during the year under review, both officially and unofficially, in wide and varied forms of activity outside of the regular work of the College. These forms of activity illustrate the many-sided ways in which the officers and teachers of the College are rendering service outside the College, not only in academic but in unacademic lines. The list is too long to print but it makes an impressive showing. Members of the Faculty have given addresses in about thirty other colleges and universities, including some considerable courses of lectures. The College was also officially represented at a very wide range of educational and scholarly organizations, not less than sixty in all, and members of the Faculty were generously included in the list of officers and important committees of many of these organizations.

Several members of the Faculty shared, as usual, in the summer teaching of other colleges and universities.

The Conservatory Trio—Mrs. Bennett, Professor Kessles, and Professor Goerner—continued their fine concert work during the year.

Many of the Faculty for the year under review assisted in the Financial Campaign by representing the College at alumni gatherings in different parts of the country.

ALUMNI AND FORMER STUDENTS

A glimpse at the long list of contributors to the Endowment and Building Fund for the year under review, as given in the Treasurer's report, should satisfy anyone of the significance of the relations of alumni and former students to the College. The year has been an unprecedented one in this respect, and we cannot be too grateful for it.

The President greatly regrets the resignation of Mr. William S. Ament, as Secretary of the Alumni Association. He has rendered a very large and generous service both to the Association and the College.

Necrology

The necrological report of the Alumni for the year under review, as submitted by the Secretary of the College, gives biographical sketches of all Alumni whose deaths have been reported during the year ending September 30, 1924. The list includes 58 names, as against 72 names the previous year. The full report is printed in pamphlet form and distributed directly to the Alumni. The Secretary's brief statistical study of the necrological record, and the list of Alumni who died during the year, should find place here.

In this list of 58 alumni whose deaths have been reported during the year there were 27 men and 31 women. The average age of the men at the time of death was 63.9; the average age of the women at the time of death was 62.5; the total average age of the 58 alumni was 63.2. The corresponding figure for 1922-23 was 63.4; for the year 1921-22 it was 65.6; for the year 1920-21 it was 62.5.

The oldest alumnus included in the necrology is the Rev. George Candee, who died July 6, 1924, at the age of 93 years, 4 months, and 1 day. At the time of his death he was the oldest alumnus of the college in point of years. Miss Frances Mildred Olney, of the class of 1921, was the youngest member of the group, dying at the age of 25 years, 7 months, and 12 days. There were three others in the group whose ages were less than 30 years,—Miss Helen Brown of the class of 1923, Dr. Herman E. Nichols of the class of 1915, and Mr. Kinshi Fukuhara of the class of 1924.

Mr. Candee was the only member of the group who reached the age of 90 or more; 10 reached the age of 80 or more, 2 men and 8 women; 15 others reached the age of 70 or more, 9 men and 6 women; 12 others reached the age of 60 or more, 7 men and 5 women; four others, 2 men and 2 women, died between the ages of 50 and 60. There were 6 men and 10 women in the group who had not reached the age of 50.

The earliest living graduates of the college are Mrs. Mary Hall Johnson, of the class of 1854; Mrs. Rosanna Baldwin Walker, of the class of 1855; and Mrs. Margaret Reid Alsworth, of the class of 1856.

The oldest surviving graduate in point of years is Mrs.

Rosanna Baldwin Walker, of the class of 1855; Mrs. Walker was 93 years of age March 4, 1924. The next oldest graduate of the college is Mr. Henry N. Penfield, of the class of 1861, who was 92 years of age September 1, 1924. The next two graduates in point of years are Mr. Edwin Booth, of the class of 1862, who was 91 years of age November 27, 1923, and Mr. George W. Andrews, of the class of 1858, who was 91 years of age February 4, 1924.

The aim of this section of the annual report is to bring under review from year to year the various aspects of the student life, to make sure that there is a wholesome many-sided life for the student, while his main business of study is given the first place.

Enrolment

The enrolment figures for the year under review and for the beginning of the current year are fully given in the review of the Secretary's report and need not be repeated here. The most interesting single facts perhaps about the enrolment are, that the total number of men enrolled in all departments was the largest that has been reported since the discontinuance of the Academy in 1916. And the number of men enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences was larger than for any other year in the history of the College. The percentage of men was the largest for twenty years. The college freshman class for the current semester numbers 399—210 of them men.

Health and Physical Education

The general health of the students, as the Deans indicate, has been good. Both Dr. Morrison and Dr. Moulton are directly and generously helping at this point. The Browning infirmary is rendering fine service. The daily health report for the women is also a very valuable aid.

The usual hospital record comes to us this year through the President of the Oberlin Hospital Association, Professor G. D. Hubbard. The record shows that from September 1, 1923, to September 1, 1924, thirteen students have had ninety-seven days of service, valued at $492.50. This is a slightly smaller number of students than received the benefit of hospital accommodation during the preceding year, and a very considerable reduction in the value of the service rendered below that of the preceding year. With the completion of the new hospital we may expect a very much freer use of hospital accommodations than has been possible heretofore.

There have been no deaths in the student body during the year under review.

Scholarship

The reports of both the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and the Secretary of the College show gains in our scholarship records. The new plan for commencement honors gives promise of good results. Especial attention may be called to one further report of the Secretary of the College as Chairman of the Committee on Admission. The Secretary has been making a careful study of the new plan for the admission of students in itself and as related to the Freshman honor list. Some of the Secretary's conclusions may be briefly indicated:

It is the opinion of the Chairman of the Committee, based upon his experience under the old plan of admission and his judgment as to what must happen under the new plan, and confirmed somewhat by the experience of the College since the new plan has been put into operation, that a really important advanced step has been taken and that we are working out in Oberlin a method of admission greatly superior to the former plan.

The Chairman of the Committee on Admission has studied not only all grades of the Freshman honor students (the highest 10 per cent of the class), but also those of the entire class, the aim of the study being to discover the extent of the correlation of Freshman scholarship grades and Freshman admission points assigned under the new plan. The figures show that the College is now securing 66 per cent of its students from the highest third of high school classes: So far as the experience of the year goes, the correlation between admission scores and Freshman grades seems so close that I feel that we are working in the right direction and that the new plan bids fair to justify itself as a permanent working basis for the selection of students for the Freshman class.

Conduct

As already noted, there were a very few serious cases of discipline during the year under review. But in general the Deans bear witness to what seems to them the prevalence of generally wholesome moral conditions in the College, and the maintenance of a fine and growing spirit of coöperation among the students themselves and between students and Faculty. The large number of students sharing in the intramural sports helps to wholesome conditions.

Student Aid

In connection chiefly with the fund for endowment and buildings, a notable sum for scholarship and loan funds has come in during the year under review, as already noted: $76,245.93 were designated for scholarship and loan funds in the campaign; $13,370.37 were made available for the Rev. A. Hastings Ross scholarship fund; and $1,228.25 for scholarship and loan purposes were included in Gifts to Capital for the year, making all told $90,844.55 for these greatly needed scholarship and loan funds. To this may be added certain items of accrued interest, and the Fellowship Funds of the L. L. S. and Aelioian Societies, making a total of $113,533.09.

Outside Activities

As has often been said in this report, the struggle to maintain a proper balance for all students between the student's primary work of study and the host of "outside activities," is a ceaseless one and requires perpetual vigilance from both Faculty and students. Some gains have been made during the year in the direction of simpler and less expensive social affairs. The number of departmental and other Clubs, which include in their membership both Faculty and students, should help to keep the outside activities within reason. There is no doubt about the valuable service which these organizations have to render, if they are not made to demand an unreasonable proportion of the student's time.

The Christian Associations

The work of the two Christian Associations has been chiefly along the line of their committee organizations. The two Associations have worked together in certain social affairs, like the "Campus Mixer" and the plans for serving chocolate to visiting teams and friends and Alumni. Both Associations have given considerable study to determining what their special and most helpful function was. The men report successful results through their committees for deputations, for the Sunday evening meetings, for employment, for new students, and the Hi-Y Committee in the town high school. The Secretary thinks the last has been the best piece of community service that has been done by the Y. M. C. A. during the year. Both Associations report a decline in church attendance.

The women are trying to work out a reorganization based on a smaller Cabinet. The committee work of the Y. W. C. A. has gone forward about as usual. The committee on the Children's Home, the committee on the work among the old people of the community, the Employment Committee, and the Committee on Sunday evening meetings have all been rendering useful service. The tendency toward a decline in church attendance would certainly seem to make the need of the Sunday evening meetings exceptionally great, and to give both Associations an opportunity for a very valuable contribution to the whole life of the College.

Oberlin-Shansi Memorial Association

The Executive Secretary of the Oberlin-Shansi Memorial Association, Mr. Bohn, submits the following report:

The significant single event in the year under review, for the Shansi Association, was the erection of the Adelaide Hemingway Memorial — a dormitory for boys, made possible by the gift of ten thousand dollars from Mr. George Hemingway, which was announced last year. The cornerstone of this building was laid April 21, 1924, and the building was available for use this Fall. It is hoped that this dormitory may be but the first of a series of much needed buildings to be erected on the Flower Garden campus. Those most urgently needed are: two for recitation and laboratory purposes, a chapel to seat seven hundred, additional dormitories, and additional faculty residences.

Plans are being carefully considered for the development of the schools supported by the Association and a detailed report supplementing one made last year is expected soon.

The annual meeting of the Association for 1924 was held in Finney Memorial Chapel, February 29th. At this meeting, the annual Shansi address was given by Mr. Franklin H. Warner, of the Oberlin class of 1898, a member of the Prudential Committee of the American Board, recently returned from China. On this occasion, also, the announcement was made of the appointment of the student representative for 1924-26—Mr. Theodore Forbes, who graduated this year. Mr. Forbes will take up the work relinquished by Mr. Francis Hutchins, now back in Oberlin to complete his college work. Mr. Samuel E. Wilson, who went out last year, will remain for a second year of service. The plan now being followed—of appointing student teachers for two years of service with overlapping terms—is working admirably.

Mention should be made of the excellent faculty now serving the various schools in charge of the Association—the Primary School, the Middle School, and the Junior College. The Association has been fortunate in both the Chinese and the American appointments. The American Board still supports one teacher, namely, the Dean, Rev. Wynn C. Fairfield; and in many other ways coöperates in the work. The principal, Mr. H. H. Kung, continues to receive calls to distinguished service for his country. The Association is to be congratulated that Mr. Kung's devotion to the schools is such that he has been able as yet to keep his relation to our schools in spite of the insistent demands upon his time. The Association is grateful for his loyalty and appreciates the prestige which he brings to the undertaking.

The future of our Shansi schools seems very promising. There is no question, however, but that the character of that future is dependent to some extent upon additional funds being secured for improved facilities. The Association must be able to present not only a continuing opportunity for Christian education, but also facilities must be provided which will make possible a grade of work comparable with that done by the purely secular institutions, or better.

Lectures, Concerts, and Other Entertainments

Since the full list of lectures, concerts, and other entertainments is published regularly in the annual catalogue for the year, to avoid duplication in the printed material of the College, the list is not repeated at this point. These entertainments deserve mention, however, as a broadening and enriching factor in the life of the students.

RELATION TO OTHER EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Educational and Civic Meetings

The College has continued its participation, through its Trustees, officers, teachers, and alumni, in a very long list of the educational and civic associations with which it is most naturally connected. Since the list of these organizations does not vary greatly from year to year, it seems not necessary that they should be repeated here.

Colleges and Universities

The College was also represented at various college and university functions of note, including the presidential inaugurations at Cornell College, Drake University, the University of Missouri, Oklahoma City College, the University of California, and Beloit College; the inauguration of the Chancellor of Washington University; the installation of three Professors of the Hamma Divinity School, Wittenberg College; the seven hundredth anniversary of the University of Naples, Italy; the one hundredth anniversary of Kenyon College; the fiftieth anniversaries of Boston University and Purdue University; and the dedication of the Law Building at West Virginia University.

The College was also represented at the centenary celebration of the birth of Joseph Leidy, at Philadelphia, December 26, 1923.

VIII

THE RELATION OF THE COLLEGE TO ITS VICINAGE

There is no doubt that the successful Financial Campaign, in which Oberlin so gloriously shared, has drawn closer all those ties that unite community and college. As the Campaign develops still further, and the full results come in, the gains for both town and college will be more and more manifest. The review of the Financial Campaign and its supporters has involved necessarily wide recognition of Oberlin's great contribution to the resources of the College.

IX

The chief gains of the year may perhaps be said to gather about the results of the Campaign—financial and otherwise. The gifts for the year, already fully reviewed, make a notable total and will help the work of the College at many points. The annual reports are intended to make a thoughtful review of all phases of the college life and work, in order to make sure that we see both where our work is strong and where it is weak. Many things need to be done to correct weaknesses, that must wait for increased resources. But on the whole the work of the College shows good progress in all its parts—physical, intellectual, and spiritual. Twelve well-deserved promotions in the upper ranks of the Faculty constitute a gratifying gain.

NEEDS

The outstanding material need of the College is unquestionably the completion of the four and one-half million fund, that we may be able not only fully to meet our endowment goals, but may have not less than the two million dollars for building and equipment. To continue the general campaign among small givers would seem to be a mistake. But it ought not to be impossible to secure several large gifts that would enable us to complete our building program. The need for it is very great; and Oberlin's "history of honor" deserves this enlarged and better embodiment.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY CHURCHILL KING.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER

TREASURER'S STATEMENT

TO THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF OBERLIN COLLEGE:

I have the honor to present herewith the annual report of the Treasurer for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1924.

The total of funds sharing in general investments for the full year amounted to $3,849,955.83. Income from general investments was received during the year as follows:

From interest on investments.....	$180,960.96
From interest, other sources.....	14,508.40
From real estate rents.....	22,048.92
From interest on Shedd Fund Notes.....	291.22
	$217,809.50

After allowing $12,498.49 to funds that were received during the year, $202,122.68 was distributed at the rate of 5¼ per cent to the funds sharing in general investments, and the remainder, $3,188.33, was credited to Profit and Loss for General Investments.

The operations for the year resulted in a net surplus of $6,005.24, as is shown by the following table:

INCOME AND EXPENSE BY DEPARTMENTS

	Income	Expense	Surplus	Deficit
General	$334,177.83	$268,059.86	$ 62,811.81	$
College	307,053.71	333,051.93		29,280.23
School of Theology	39,198.98	44,791.59		10,219.09
Conservatory	169,311.84	186,459.46		17,307.25
	$849,742.36	$832,362.84	$ 62,811.81	$ 56,806.57
Deduct for entries between depts....	790.00	790.00
	$848,952.36	$831,572.84
Special income unexpended	11,374.28
	$837,578.08
	831,572.84		$ 56,806.57
Surplus	$ 6,005.24		$ 6,005.24

REPORT OF THE TREASURER

The surplus for the year, $6,005.24, was applied to reduce the accumulated deficits. A summary statement of the deficit account is as follows:

Combined deficit, August 31, 1923.....	$123,913.55
Charge back unpaid note previously credited to this account*	5,000.00
	$128,913.55

Reduced by items, 1923-24:

Income from Estate of Charles M. Hall in excess of budget estimate.....	$ 38,000.00
Undesignated bequest	2,662.03
From operation of Dormitories and Boarding Halls	11,096.60
Surplus for the year.....	6,005.24	$ 57,763.87
Net accumulated deficit, August 31, 1924		$ 71,149.68

For several years we have had to show a debit balance in the account called Profit and Loss for General Investments. The amount of this balance on August 31, 1923, was $46,541.82. As a result of the sale and exchange of securities during the year, together with the application of the residue of income not distributed, to this account, the debit balance has been made good, and the account now has a credit balance of $1,285.95.

It has been our custom to report gifts in two main divisions, (1) Gifts for Current Use, and (2) Gifts to Capital. Because of the great interest of alumni and friends in the progress of collections on the Endowment and Building Fund it has seemed desirable this year to add a third division which will include gifts to this new fund, part of which are for current use, and part for endowment.

The total amount pledged up to August 31, 1924, to the Endowment and Building Fund is $2,812,220.02 from 8,462 subscribers. As will appear from the detailed list of payments there has been paid in during the year a total of $464,914.39, which, added to payments received before September 1, 1923, makes a total of $470,211.39 received on this account.

REPORT OF THE AUDITING COMMITTEE FOR THE YEAR ENDING AUGUST 31, 1924

To the Board of Trustees of Oberlin College:

Your Committee made on November 13, 1924, the usual complete inspection of the College Endowment securities, and found them to correspond in all respects with the books of the College as called for by the report of the certified accountant and the annual report of the Treasurer.

The lists had been so carefully prepared by the Treasurer, Mr. H. B. Thurston, and the Assistant Treasurer, Mr. H. W. Cargill, and the securities so systematically arranged by the officials of The Cleveland Trust Company, in whose vaults as joint custodian with the College Treasurer all securities are kept, that our examination was completed in one business day.

All bonds and certificates of stock were verified by number and par value, and all notes and mortgages by amount, interest payments, insurance policies, and appraised value of security. All sales or payments on principal were checked with the Trust Company's ledger entries.

The bonds of the Treasurer and the Assistant Treasurer we find to be in the custody of the President of the College, as required by the regulations of the Trustees of the College, and the current premium has been paid.

We attach to our report the official certified statement of the Public Accounting Department of The Cleveland Trust Company, employed by vote of the Prudential Committee of the College to make the annual audit of the College Treasurer's books in the Oberlin office.

Mr. Kirshner of the Committee was unable to be present.

(Signed) IRVING W. METCALF, Chairman.

MARK L. THOMSEN.

THOS. HENDERSON.

THE CLEVELAND TRUST COMPANY
Public Accounting Department

Cleveland, O., November 10, 1924.

Mr. Irving W. Metcalf, Chairman,
Audit Committee, Oberlin College,
Oberlin, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—Complying with your request we have made a careful examination of the accounts as shown by various books of entry, and of other records in the office of the Treasurer of Oberlin College pertaining to the year ended August 31st, 1924, as follows:—

Trial Balance as of August 31st, 1924, was checked to the Ledger and all balances found to be properly listed thereon.

Loans and Investments, $3,437,469.80. All transactions pertaining to these items were analyzed; the Ledger balances of the various accounts were found to be in agreement with totals of balances of individual items as entered on investment record cards in the Treasurer's Office. All gains or losses on transfer of securities have been properly entered on records. This item is made up as follows:

Notes and Mortgages	$1,837,198.53
Bonds	1,057,830.37
Stocks	525,882.05
Collateral Notes	16,558.85
	$3,437,469.80

This total is carried on the General Ledger, classified as to source of investment, as follows:—

General Investments $3,348,617.17

Special Investments:—

Library Fund	$ 3,000.00
Cutler Fellowship	2,553.45
James K. Newton	1,000.00
John H. Beacom	45,544.86
M. W. Beacom	36,754.32—
	88,852.80
Total	$3,437,469.80

Real Estate, $304,685.24—General Houses and Lands, $253,051.18—All entries pertaining to real estate transactions were examined and all gains or losses on sales were found to be properly entered on records; totals of individual record card balances were found to agree with ledger balances as shown above.

Notes Receivable, $12,631.37, is made up as follows:—

General Notes	$3,631.90
Shedd Loan Fund Notes	8,999.47
	$ 12,631.37

All notes were examined.

Cash in hands of Trustee for Investment, $61,786.80. Balance as shown was verified by direct communication with The Cleveland Trust Co., Trustee.

Student Loan Fund Notes, $43,784.14. All notes on file were examined and were found to support the loan fund balances in the General Ledger, with the exception of those notes paid subsequent to August 31st, 1924, for which supporting entries had been made on records.

Inventories, $30,192.27—Detailed list of general supplies on hand per inventory taken by Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds; no further attempt was made to verify the accuracy of this figure.

Cash on Hand and in Banks, is made up as follows:—
Cash on hand$ 6,758.35

Cash in Banks:—

The Cleveland Trust Co.	$ 2,438.43
National Park Bank	7,250.87
Oberlin Savings Bank Co.	1,765.58
Peoples Banking Co.	2,336.93
	—————$20,550.16

Bank Accounts were reconciled as of August 31st, 1924, and the various bank balances verified by certificates from depositories.

Cash on hand was verified by actual count at the close of business November 6, 1924.

Disbursements—Checks were found to be properly signed and endorsed and in agreement with entries on check register. Extensive test checks of vouchers were made and no errors of consequence were found.

Notes Payable, $135,000.00. All notes were verified by direct communication with the payee.

GENERAL

The various security and real estate transactions during the period were carefully analyzed, and in our judgment the general condition of these assets is very good; the change in investment and real estate accounts as compared with the values as of August 31st, 1923, are as follows:—

	Increase	Decrease
Notes and Mortgages	$496,564.32
Bonds		$61,507.59
Stocks		31,987.32
Collateral Loans	1,000.00
Real Estate	22,759.53
General Houses and Lands	60.00
Net Increase	$426,888.94

The records of the Treasurer's Office appear to be in excellent condition; an effective follow-up system has been installed to handle the large amount of detail in connection with the fund campaign carried on during the period.

Yours very truly
(Signed) J. LYMAN BRYAN, Manager.
